Wholesale price hikes announced

Economists discount inflation resurgence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported today that higher costs for food and fuel triggered the second-sharpest jump of the year in wholesale prices during July, offering fresh evidence of a resurgence of inflation.

The Labor Department said its Wholesale Price Index climbed 1.2 per cent, reversing a decline of one-tenth of 1 per cent in June. The rise was the largest since April's 1.5 per cent and was only the third monthly increase of the year.

The increase, which had been expected by administration economists, works out to an annual rate of 14.4 per cent. Combined with June's increase in consumer prices at an annual rate of 9.6 per cent, the latest report indicated that inflation is regaining strength. Consumer prices had subsided to an average annual increase of 5.2 per cent during the three previous months.

Wholesale price increases, of course, usually mean higher prices for consumers —and the latest report did not include several factors already in place which will push up prices.

Administration economists, however, contend the current surge is temporary and will give way within a few months.

The wholesale index includes prices from all levels of the economy, including industrial raw materials and other items several steps removed from consumers. The Labor Department said wholesale prices of just those products headed for the retail level were up 1.4 per cent, the biggest increase since November.

The Labor Department said food and farm products accounted for three-fourths of the jump in the over-all index. That category rose 4.6 per cent on the strength of higher prices for vegetables, grain, fats and oils, sugar and sweets and all basic protein—meat, poultry and fish.

Industrial commodities advanced four-tenths of 1 per cent due to higher prices for fuels and related products and power.

The latest advance left the index 8.7 per cent ahead of where it was a year ago. This was the smallest 12-month advance since the 8.2 per cent figure recorded in February 1973.

FARMERS MARKETING THEIR WARES — A rather unique experience took place in the Hidy Foods parking lot, on Columbus Avenue, Wednesday evening. Area farmers were invited to sell their produce to customers at any price. Many farmers showed up early and immediately sold out of their produce. One of the last remaining was Henry Thackett, of U.S. 62-S, who is pictured showing some customers corn. Beecher and Helen Ingram, of the Dogtown community, another farming couple who participated, expressed the opinion that they would like to see the farmer's market become a weekly event.

Jury acquits Gurney in slush fund case

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Confident that he's finally "out of the clutches of the Justice Department," former Sen. Edward J. Gurney says he will try to regain his health before deciding whether to attempt a political comeback.

"The government had its shot. They never had a case to begin with," the elated 61-year-old Republican said Wednesday after a jury cleared him of five charges in a $233,000 slush fund scandal and left two other counts unresolved.

After 56 hours of deliberation over 10 days, the six-man, six-woman jury found Gurney innocent of bribery, accepting unlawful compensation and three counts of lying to a federal grand jury.

The panel, which heard testimony from 105 witnesses in the 24-week-long trial, said it was deadlocked on a conspiracy charge and one other perjury charge against Gurney.

Co-defendants Ralph Koontz,51, and K. Wayne Swiger, 61, both suspended Federal Housing Administration officials from Florida, were found innocent of the conspiracy charge. The panel said it couldn't agree on a conspiracy count against ex-Gurney aide Joseph Bastien, 33, but acquitted him on a charge of accepting unlawful compensation.

The case centered around an alleged scheme to sell Gurney's influence to Florida builders in return for FHA favors.

Jury foreman James Baker said jurors voted 7 to 5 to acquit Gurney on the conspiracy count, 9 to 3 to find him guilty on the fourth count of perjury and 9 to 3 to convict Bastien on conspiracy. U.S. District Court Judge Ben Krentzman ruled a mistrial on the three counts.

After rendering their verdict, jurors criticized the government for presenting a weak case — "The proof just wasn't there," said one.

The five prosecutors refused comment on whether they planned to try the case again.

But Gurney, the first incumbent senator to be indicted in 50 years, said, "If they couldn't prove this case after two years and plea bargaining by every key witness, they're never going to prove it. Thank God for the jury system that got me out of the clutches of the Justice Department."

Gurney was at the pinnacle of his 20-year political career when the indictment was handed down a year ago,

Council race draws six candidates

By GEORGE MALEK

The deadline for filing for the November general election has passed, and 62 Fayette County residents will be competing for 48 elective offices. In addition, six New Holland residents will be seeking four offices in that village.

The November 4 election will include contests for Washington C.H. City Council, the Washington C.H. Board of Education, the Fayette County Board of Education, Washington C.H. Municipal Court judge, various offices in five villages, and a trustee and clerk in each of the county's 10 townships.

Six candidates have filed petitions to have their names on the November ballot for the City Council contest. They are William F. Stolzenburg Sr., 804 Maple St.; William F. Stolzenburg Jr., 1104 Rawlings St.; Roy C. (Dick) Underwood Jr., 429 Fifth St.; John F. Morris, 793 McLean St.; James F. Ward, 549 Damon Drive; and Joseph O'Brien, 120 Gardner Court. Three will be elected, and O'Brien is the only incumbent.

Three persons will compete for two seats on the Fayette County Board of Education. They are Susan Rockhold, 7852 Greenfield-Sabina Road; Philip Grover, 2906 Parrott-Station Road; and Marvin DeMent, 17015 Ohio 41-N. DeMent is an incumbent.

The Washington C.H. Board of Education will offer no contest as only three candidates filed for the three seats which will become vacant. Walter E. (Gene) Bienz, 414 Van Deman St., and Robert Highfield, 419 Van Deman St., will again serve as board members. The new addition will be Hugh M. Rea, 132 E. Paint St., former elementary coordinator in the Washington C.H. School District.

John P. Case, 330 Jupiter St., and Robert L. Simpson, 825 Lincoln Drive, will offer area residents a choice of Municipal Court judges for the first time in a great many years. Reed M. Winegardner, the incumbent judge, is retiring.

JEFFERSONVILLE

Gordon McCarty will become the mayor of Jeffersonville. He is running unopposed for the post.

Also unopposed are Harlan Hoppes and Nelson C. Baker who are the only candidates for the board of public affairs. There are two seats open.

Three candidates, however, will battle for two seats on the village council. They are Harold L. Mountcastle, Marguerite Flax and Marvin Brown.

No one filed for the position of clerk which was also open.

BLOOMINGBURG

Max Grim, unopposed for mayor, will retain his present post, but a heated contest has emerged for two council seats. Four candidates have filed for the village council, Irene Grim, Patti L. Jenkins, Charles Hunt and William Bennett.

Robert E. Grim and Judith Ward will face each other for the clerk-treasurer's office. Grim is the incumbent.

There will be no contest for the board of public affairs because two seats are

CARLISLE, Iowa (AP) — Police Chief Don Porter began receiving food stamps this week. He has not been paid since July 1 when the city council refused to set his salary.

"I have to make sure my family has something to eat," Porter said. "I never thought I'd have to stoop so low."

The council in this Des Moines suburb of 2,250 reduced Porter's salary from $9,000 a year to $2.25 an hour in early June, claiming he was incompetent, insubordinate and did not follow regular procedures.

"That's the same salary they would pay a person to sweep the streets or fill holes in the streets — part time help," Porter says. "They figured that if they drop my salary to $2.25 an hour, I would quit."

Porter didn't quit, so the council fired him. But under Iowa law, a mayor has the sole right to hire a police chief, so Mayor Larry Anderson reappointed Porter five days later.

So the council, which sets salaries for all city employes, has refused to set a salary for the chief.

"All I receive on payday is a letter from the city clerk stating she is not authorized to issue me a check," Porter says.

This week, he applied for the food stamps.

"I called up and wanted to know if I was qualified," Porter said. "The lady said if I wasn't qualified now, I never would be."

Porter, whose children are 10, 8, and 6, said his family has survived because his wife works for a printing company in Des Moines.

"The check that she brings in takes care of outstanding bills, but it doesn't leave enough to eat," Porter says. "We've still got a little savings account left that isn't completely used up. I can last for quite a while."

Porter says one councilman said he was not qualified for his job because "he puts in too much time and he spends too much money.

"If that makes you not qualified because you are doing your job, there's something wrong someplace," Porter said.

Arnold makes pig of himself; will be crashing big boar

Bethel Mason, Arnold's owner, served a cake with one candle and the 600-pound pig ate all of it Wednesday. "He would have liked to eat the candle, too," Mason said.

No wonder. People buy him candy, soft drinks, pies and cakes. And when he isn't eating, he sleeps in the breeze from an electric fan.

"He has been known to drink a beer, too," Mason said. "He's been eating pretty good."

Mason, watching Arnold finish off two gallons of milk, said on the average day the pig eats "10 to 15 pounds of hog feed or corn meal."

But Arnold's birthday appetite appeared to have no bounds.

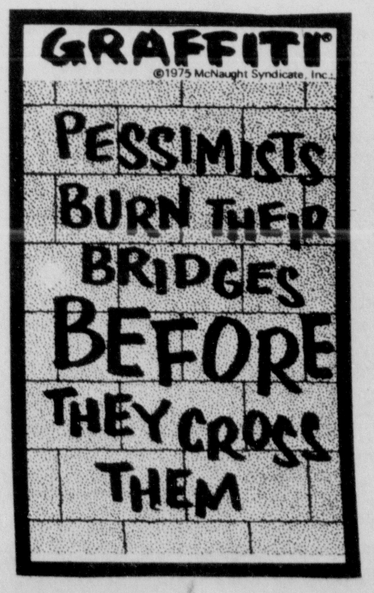

He gobbled up an apple pie, washed it down with chocolate soda — his favorite soft drink — then turned to desert. It was a nickel gum ball, nuzzled out of Mason's vending machine.

The pig then flopped down in the station's doorway.

If its hot, Arnold spends most of the day in a nearby waterhole. But he always spends his nights on the pavement in front of the service station.

Arnold was part of a litter of pigs owned by Mason, and he began staying around the station in the winter because it was heated. He quickly became a pet.

"Everybody who comes along wants to know when we'll kill him," Mason said. "But I reckon we'll let him stay around here as long as he wants to."

Hoffa's foster son questioned

DETROIT (AP) — Jimmy Hoffa's son says he believes Charles "Chuckie" O'Brien, Hoffa's foster son, knows what happened to the ex-Teamsters union president. He demands that O'Brien take a lie detector test.

O'Brien, the 41-year-old union organizer raised by Hoffa from the age of 3, said he had no knowledge of Hoffa's whereabouts. He talked with James P. Hoffa, Hoffa's son, who demanded O'Brien take a polygraph examination.

"He hemmed and he hawed and he said he would have to consult his attorney," said James P. Hoffa. "I construed that to be a refusal."

O'Brien emerged Wednesday from several days of seclusion and was interviewed by the FBI for 3½ hours. He is expected to be questioned again as the FBI continues its probe into the disappearance of Hoffa last Wednesday.

"I think he has knowledge of what happened," James P. Hoffa told The Associated Press Wednesday night." Hoffa, a Detroit attorney, said O'Brien's FBI interview generated "some interesting leads.

"Some are being checked out. Some are very, very interesting."

O'Brien would not comment. James Burdick, O'Brien's attorney, told The AP that O'Brien was not involved in Hoffa's disappearance.

Hoffa called home last Wednesday to say Detroit Mafia figure Anthony Giacalone hadn't shown up for a luncheon date. The 62-year-old former labor leader hasn't been heard from since. Giacalone denies he had planned to meet Hoffa, a longtime friend.

O'Brien provided corroboration of Giacalone's story that he was at a Southfield athletic club at the time of the luncheon meeting.

Bulletin

DETROIT (AP) — State and federal officials are investigating reports that ex-Teamsters President Jimmy Hoffa withdrew about $1 million from a union pension fund shortly before he vanished last week, according to informed sources here and in Washington.

Friends say Hoffa said the meeting also was to include former Teamsters vice president Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano and a Detroit labor figure, Leonard Schultz. Both denied the appointment.

James P. Hoffa said he thinks O'Brien knows Hoffa's fate because "of his associations and his activities of the past week." Sources said O'Brien was in Detroit last weekend, then in the Memphis area.

The Hoffa family has received no ransom demands, but believes Hoffa was kidnaped. The FBI said it is operating under the assumption he still is alive.

Hoffa's attorney, Leonard Boudin of New York, said he thinks Hoffa was kidnaped by opponents who feared he would win a key court case, opening the way for a challenge of current Teamsters leaders.

It was speculated immediately after it was learned Hoffa was missing that his opponents decided to get rid of him so he could not run against incumbent Frank E. Fitzsimmons for the Teamsters general presidency.

Skies finally began clearing across Ohio overnight as cool and drier air moved across the area.

Temperatures fell into the 50s and low 60s and at sunrise the cool spot was Youngstown with 51 degrees, just one degree above the record for the date. The low of 49 in Erie, Pa. set a new low for this date.

A high pressure system over lower Michigan is responsible for the improved weather, and is forecast to continue eastward, reaching New England Friday.

Following the high is a slow warming trend that will carry into the weekend.

Sunny skies were expected for this afternoon with temperatures in the 70s. Further warming to the low 80s is scheduled for Friday afternoon, with temperatures reaching the mid 80s by Saturday with continuing fair skies.

Fair and warm Saturday and Sunday. A chance of showers Monday. Highs in the mid to upper 80s. Lows in the 60s.

State senate eyes energy bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State senators convene today with the House in recess to try to complete their version of a major new state energy bill.

A subcommittee of the Senate Energy and Environment Committee has the bill almost ready for a vote, but changes it made in an earlier compromise involving the House would require further proceedings in the lower chamber.

The office of Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, said it was unlikely that chamber will reconvene before Monday.

Both chambers began their late summer break last Friday night after the House, by a vote of 82-1, approved its version of a compromise worked out with the office of GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Senators refused to act on the major legislation right away, saying they wanted more time to study it.

Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, scheduled today's floor session, but in the interim, the subcommittee met to take under consideration a broad range of energy proposals that have been languishing in the two houses all year.

What emerged Wednesday was a new bill—similar in many ways to the one that passed the House—but also one that incorporates some key provisions involving the emergency powers of the governor and those of an envisioned Energy Resources and Development Agency (ERDA).

Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, chairman of the subcommittee, said the panel's actions speeded the chance of a Senate-House agreement by "refining some things that the House, in its haste, didn't catch." He added that "all they have to do now is concur."

One major change was an amendment that divides the powers of the Energy Emergency Commission between ERDA and the governor. The commission, an ad hoc group slated to go out of existence Jan. 1 anyway, would surrender to the governor its authority to declare an "energy emergency." At the same time, its power to allocate fuel and order other conservation measures would be absorbed by the new agency.

ERDA presumably would cooperate with Rhodes, since the House and Senate versions both give him the authority to name its five voting members. Both also provide that four legislators—two Republicans and two Democrats—would serve as ex officio members who would "fully participate but not vote," Meshel said.

Both houses also have approved major provisions aimed at attracting a new $400 million Coalcon demonstration plant to southeast Ohio where it would seek to develop methods for gasification of coal, among other technological advances. The plan calls for favorable tax treatment to make Ohio more attractive than other states competing for the facility.

The subcommittee, in another amendment, voted Wednesday to exempt the new energy agency from the jurisdiction of the Power Siting Commission. Otherwise, the commission would have the prerogative to rule on the sites of new energy facilities, it was explained.

Sen. Robert E. O'Shaughnessy, D-15 Columbus, who heads the full energy and environment committee, said another change in the bill is the earmarking of a $5 million energy appropriations which was included but not specifically earmarked in the newly approved capital improvements bill.

Under that amendment, $1 million would be set aside for operating ERDA during the next two years, while the remaining $4 million would be available for energy related program development, he said.

Hoffa case

The case involves Hoffa's appeal of a clemency order issued by President Richard M. Nixon releasing Hoffa after he served 4½ years of a 13-year sentence for mail fraud and jury tampering.

The clemency order bars Hoffa from participating in union politics until 1980. Hoffa was unsuccessful in fighting the restriction in U.S. District Court, and the case is pending at the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Hoffa has argued that Nixon was not acting within his powers by restricting a clemency order.

forcing him out of a 1974 bid for reelection.

Asked if he would run for office again, Gurney said, "That's an option.... I'm going to take a little vacation to recover my health a little better. I'll think about my future after that."

William Taylor, state GOP chairman, said he wants to persuade Gurney to run for the Senate in 1976 against Democrat Lawton Chiles.

"I think it's a great day for the Republican party," said Taylor. "We will encourage him to get back in there and present himself to the people."

The jury had reported Monday that it had reached all the verdicts it could and was hopelessly deadlocked on unspecified counts. Krentzman had the returned verdicts sealed and ordered the panel to try again to reach a unanimous decision on all counts.

Wednesday afternoon, jurors said they tried and failed despite 10 more hours rehashing the 86 days of testimony and weighing more than 500 pieces of evidence.

Stock list posts gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged upward today despite the news that wholesale prices climbed at a 14.4 per cent annual rate last month.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead a fraction, and gainers took a 3-2 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

The government announced as the market opened that its wholesale price index had risen 1.2 per cent during July, with food items accounting for about three-fourths of the increase.

But analysts noted that Wall Street had been bracing for that kind of news in the July index for about two weeks.

And some investors seemed to be doing some cautious buying in the hope that the market had absorbed the impact of the news in advance with its sharp declines of late.

Japanese Reds free hostages

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Five terrorists freed 15 hostages today from an airliner at Kuala Lumpur airport. The Red Army terrorists were joined by five other radicals released from Japanese prisons and four substitute hostages before the plane took off for Libya.

Among the 15 hostages were U.S. Consul Robert Stebbins of Clovis, N.M., and a Swedish diplomat. They were released in exchange for the four substitute hostages who boarded the plane with the terrorists.

Officials said the Japan Air Lines DC8 would make a refueling stop in Colombo, Sri Lanka, and then fly straight to Tripoli, where it was expected at about 10:45 p.m. Tripoli time (4:45 p.m. EDT). The flight would cover 6,900 miles.

Earlier reports said the plane would refuel at Aden.

Officials said the Colombo government warned it would shoot anyone who tried to get off the plane during the refueling stop.

The four susbstitute hostages were Ramli Omar, Malaysian parliamentary secretary to the Communications Ministry; Osman Kassim, secretary general of the Malaysian Home Ministry; and two senior Japanese Foreign Ministry officials — Ryohei Murata and Ochi Keisuke.

The 15 hostages were the last to be freed of a total of 52 persons seized in the drama that began Monday when the terrorists invaded the U.S. Embassy building. Most of the others were released Wednesday.

The plane's take-off was delayed for a full day as the terrorists and Malaysians stumbled on new snags in the complex negotiations. These included the raiders' destination and whether they should be armed.

The terrorists had already secured their main demand — the release of five comrades imprisoned in Japanese jails. The five arrived in Kuala Lumpur on Tuesday and had spent most of their time since their arrival waiting in an airport building.

Earlier, two Malaysian explosives experts boarded the plane and came out with two hooded terrorists carrying some packets containing six homemade bombs. They drove in a car about half a mile down the runway, walked a short distance across the grass, placed the bombs in a hole and detonated them.

The explosion, which could be heard a mile away, sent smoke and debris more than 40 feet in the air.

Officials said the terrorists were allowed to keep their firearms, but the bullets were to be kept by the government officials acting as substitute hostages.

At every step of the drama, long drawn-out negotiations were required on such issues as handling of the hostages, where the terrorists would fly, whether they could take arms on the plane and the number of the plane crew.

Three have chance for KSU dismissal

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Ten enlisted men and one lowranking Ohio National Guard officer had the only chances today of being dismissed immediately as defendants in the $46 million damages trial stemming from the 1970 Kent State University shootings.

U.S. District Court Judge Don J. Young denied defense motions Wednesday to dismiss claims against Gov. James A. Rhodes, former Kent State President Robert I. White, ex-Adj. Gen. Sylvester T. Del Corso and former Asst. Adj. Gen. Robert H. Canterbury.

Young said the evidence in each case, except for the 11, might persuade reasonable minds that the defendants should be held liable in the shootings and that the jury should decide.

The rulings came as the shooting victims rested their case after 40 days of testimony from 76 witnesses.

The defense was to begin its case today by calling Kent police and firemen to testify about rioting downtown and the burning of the campus Reserve Officers Training Corps building the weekend before the shooting.

The 11 former guardsmen Young left under consideration for dismissal were the only defendants not called to the witness stand. Victims' attorneys said they would consider overnight whether to drop their claims against the 11.

The victims rested their case after their final witness, former Scranton Commission member James F. Ahern told the jury the shootings were unnecessary.

The former New Haven, Conn., police chief said law enforcement officers act as referees to protect citizens' right to demonstrate peacefully as well as guard the lives and property of others. He said guardsmen never should have attempted to disperse the apparently peaceful campus antiwar rally that preceded the shooting.

He also said it appeared guardsmen should not have turned and fired on protestors but were "home free" headed toward their own lines after being harassed during the dispersal maneuver.

The gunfire erupted as guardsmen attempted to break up the rally May 4, 1970, leaving four students dead and nine wounded.

The victims and their familes seek the judgment from 41 present or former state officials and guardsmen. The troops were ordered to Kent during a weekend of rioting in protest of U.S. military activity in Southeast Asia.

State fairgrounds readied for opening

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State Fair employes, backed by a small army of temporary help, are putting the fairgrounds in shape for the fair opening, less than three weeks away.

Fair officials said activity is at a quick pace in anticiption of what they call the world's largest fair. Most of the buildings have received a fresh coat of paint; livestock pens are being prepared and hundreds of yards of fencing are being spruced up.

The steel poles supporting the sky gliders have been bolted into place. The glider's three-passenger gondolas will handle nearly 2,000 passengers an hour when the 12-day fair opens Aug. 21.

And this year's fair will not only be cleaner, but greener, fair officials said.

Numerous flowers have been planted to complete the beautification program and new grass can be seen throughout the fairgrounds.

Included in the mail are hundreds of entries by hopeful exhibitors. On opening day, some 63,000 exhibits will be displayed by 10,000 exhibitors.

A parttime force joins three regular crews during the spring and summer to put final touches on the grounds. Housewives, students, school teachers and retired businessmen become fair employes. Others take two-week vacations to work at the fair.

They fill positions such as clerks, typists, ticket sellers, ticket takers, painters, ground keepers, electricians, parking lot attendants, shuttlebus drivers and conductors and grandstand and coliseum ushers.

Ohio 4-H members are conducting an advance ticket sale through Aug. 15, with 25 cents of each $1.50 ticket going to the local club and another 10 cents to the 4-H Foundation Endowment Fund.

Portuguese moderates attack Reds

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portuguese Communists opened fire today on a mob attacking their headquarters in the northern town of Fafe, killing one person and wounding five, officials said.

Fafe, about 200 miles north of Lisbon, was the scene of antiCommunist violence earlier this week.

Other anti-Communist rioting was reported in Bombarral, 40 miles from Lisbon. Rioters tore apart the offices of the Communist party and the Socialist Leftist party, a small, militant group.

The riots marked the fifth straight day of anti-Communist violence in the conservative north. Military men and civilians expressed fear that the backlash would soon hit the capital, possibly setting off civil war.

In the industrial northern city of Porto, a scheduled Communist rally mustered only a few thousand supporters. The 140 marines who were rushed Wednesday to bolster local troops were not called out.

Meanwhile, the Lisbon newspaper O Secolo quoted Communist-backed Premier Vasco Goncalves saying: "We have a government."

The paper said Goncalves is expected to name the new cabinet soon and end a crisis precipitated last month when Socialists and Popular Democrats quit the government to protest its swing toward the radical left.

Goncalves met late into the evening with President Francisco da Costa Gomes and leading members of the ruling Armed Forces Movement.

Bellbrook to rebuild council

BELLBROOK, Ohio (AP) — The only Bellbrook councilman not removed from office in a recall election July 26 will interview applicants for one of the six vacant seats under a court ruling handed down Wednesday.

Councilman Robert Yeager, who voted against council levying a proposed one-half per cent income tax after it had been turned down by voters, was ordered to select a second councilman.

Visiting Clinton County Common Pleas Court Judge Paul Riley ruled that Yeager and the new councilman then select a third. The three will then appoint a fourth, filling all the terms that expire Dec. 31.

Sitting in Greene County Common Pleas Court, Riley said the four could then name a mayor and a vice mayor. Police Chief Richard Frederick's position as acting city manager would then expire.

The ousted council left the daily operations of goverment up to Frederick in its final meeting. It attempted to name Yeager mayor, but he refused.

The seats of Yeager and the three councilmen yet to be named will be up at the November election under Riley's ruling. A special election will be held the same month to fill the two other seats.

The mayor and vice mayor are selected from the council. The recall ousted both Mayor Charles K. Billings and Deputy Mayor Lawrence Corbett from office.

State jobless claims jump for week

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — First-time unemployment compensation claims to the state were almost three times the number at the beginning of this month as the same period last year, the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services said today.

For the week ending Aug. 2, 31,771 persons made initial application for insurance, up 8,427 from the previous week.

In August 1974, 62,503 persons received continuing unemployment.

In the state's eight largest counties, initial unemployment claims rose by almost 6,000 to 15,935 from the previous week with almost a 2,000 person increase each in Cuyahoga, Franklin and Montgomery counties.

Initial and continuing claims under the extended state and federal unemployment compensation program also advanced. Benefits to first-time applicants rose from 5,862 on July 26 to 6,170 on Aug. 2 and continuing claims rose by 4,000 recipients to 48,340 for the week ending Aug. 2.

Sales pitch under fire

VICTORIA, B.C. (AP) — The provincial Consumer Services Department Wednesday issued a warning not to get involved in a business plan being offered in British Columbia by an American company convicted of theft last January.

A news release from the department said Firestone Photographs Inc. of Columbus, Ohio, has been advertising the sale of franchises in British Columbia for the distribution of Kodak films and other photo products.

Advertisements in B.C. newspapers state a $5,495 investment is required, and in return, Firestone Photographs agrees to supply firlm and display racks, a map of the sales territory and to arrange for space in retail outlets for the distribution, the release says.

The department's warning says the firm was prosecuted for theft by deception in Franklin County, Ohio, and fined $10,000. It was also ordered to refund more than $30,000 to distributors who claimed they were deceived.

Firestone Photographs is "neither registered as a B.C. company nor as an extra-provincial company," the release said.

California ends freeway work

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California, king of the freeway builders, is putting away its road plans and looking for ways to keep its highway-building machine from going broke.

Faced with mounting costs and declining revenue, state officials have frozen new highway construction. They say they will eliminate 3,300 transportation jobs over the next 11 months.

The cutbacks will slice the state's $985 million highway budget by 25 pecent and halt three decades of freeway building.

Co-ops provide more farm cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new analysis by the Agriculture Department shows that federal land bank associations owned cooperatively by borrowers are providing a larger share of financing for purchases of farm real estate.

In 1969 only 13 per cent of the farm real estate lending was by the federal land banks while life insurance companies provided 19 per cent of the mortgage capital. Last year land banks accounted for 33 per cent and insurance companies 7 per cent.

Traditionally, the largest portion of farm real estate financing has been handled by the sellers themselves, including 49 per cent of the mortgage money in 1969 and 43 per cent last year.

Inflation fears mounting again

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Busiess Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Judging by the reaction, that shocking jump in the consumer goods inflation rate to 9.6 per cent in June isn't being treated as a mere fluke. Fears are mounting.

Continued price increases could cause other serious economic disruptions, the most serious of them being to undermine chances of a recovery. Almost certainly they would produce political consequences.

Even members of the Ford administration concede that its policies might add to the inflation problem, which was considered all but licked just a few short weeks ago.

Albert Rees, director of the Council on Wage-Price Stability fears that Soviet grain purchases and a decontrol of oil prices could be contributants to inflation. But these, he said, aren't the only concerns.

Testifying before the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, he said that prices of finished industrial products haven't declined, as they had been expected to, "and they are beginning to rise very early in the recovery."

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, fears that a continuation of rising prices could actually plunge the economy into a deeper recession in the near future.

Meeting in Chicago this week, the executive council of the labor federation said a tight money policy by the Federal Reserve, grain sales to the Soviet Union and the Ford administration's oil pricing policy constituted economic threats.

Arthur F. Burns, the Federal Reserve Board chairman, told the Joint Economic Committee that he too is worried that sales of U.S. grain to the Soviets will force up food prices.

As if to underscore these fears, General Mills and International Multifoods said Wednesday they were increasing flour prices to supermarkets by 1.6 cents a pound, or about 10 per cent.

While there is some economic justification for higher grain prices, mainly because of the increased demand, some economists are puzzled over the persistence of high prices for manufactured goods in the absence of demand.

Why, they ask, should prices remain high when the nation's manufacturing capacity is being utilized at a rate of less than 70 per cent and the likelihood of continued slack even if a robust economic recovery develops?

Economists of the First National City Bank are speculating on the possibility that. Jawboning against price increases is likely to become more commonplace, the First City economists feel. And antitrust action is a distinct possibility, they say.

"Out and About" with Mark Thellmann

Dear Readers,

I have something this week I want to share with you. Most of you have probably heard of "yellow journalism," (which despite popular belief has nothing to do with paper training your dog) which flourished some 50 years ago. Anyway, a friend of mine from New Jersey, who is a professional writer, specializes in what he calls "scarlet journalism," which takes the imagination one step further. His name is Luther Conant III and while he was in Washington C. H. visiting me months ago he stole a copy of the Record-Herald and re-wrote one of my police beat stories, undoubtedly to intimidate me, but this is the way he interpreted a hit-skip accident I had covered:

"At 11:45 p.m. Wednesday, a car owned by Sharon Storm of 221 Willard St., was struck by an unidentified driver in Frisch's parking lot on Clinton Ave."

Mark, what a high time those long gone newsmen would have had with that! Let it pass in one middlin' little paragraph? Not on your life! It would've read more like this: "It was rapidly nearing 11:30 p.m. Saturday night when comely Sharon Storm pulled into the parking lot at Frisch's on Clinton Avenue. The long-haired blond pulled her thin coat even more tightly around her as she stepped from her car into the freezing rain that gusted around her. She entered the restaurant quickly, never realizing the fate that providence held in store for her.

Fifteen rain-drenched minutes passed. Suddenly, from out of the wind-swept darkness another car appeared. It roared down Clinton Avenue like a marauding demon! The driver's red-rimmed eyes took in the flashing Frisch's sign, but his gin-soaked brain totally failed to comprehend.

His tires screeched on the slick pavement as his car swerved into the Frisch's lot. Too late his numbered mind took in the details of Sharon's car before him. His foot twitched spastically, hunting for the brake peddle, obscured by alcohol. Too late he found his mark and with a splintering crash, ripped into the side of the young innocent's car.

Blind panic seized the inebriate as his fearful position closed in on him. In seconds, the restaurant customers would be upon him, summoned by the deafening crash. The haze cleared from his mind as ounces of adrenaline surged through his blood.

Quickly he threw the big car into reverse and stepped on the gas. The vehicle vanished into the night as Sharon Storm stepped from Frisch's door to confront her crumpled car. A single tear crept slowly down the young girl's cheek, finally mingling with the rain.

Somewhere, speeding ever farther in the distance, a frightened man stepped harder on the gas!"

The only reason we aren't hiring Luther as our new police beat reporter is that police beat would be the only thing in the whole newspaper if he took the liberty to stretch each incident as the one above; yet his rendition remains a very authentic interpretation of what once was. I'm not so sure we didn't lose something when yellow journalism turned white and went straight. Ah well, that was my side-light for this week and now it's down to business. . .

I am proud to announce the winner of last week's Photo of the Week Contest and it is Greg Bailey of 317 Worley St., for his brilliant caption, "Yuk! You mean I have to kiss Mark Thellmann?" Second place goes to Mary Whiting of 1046 Genevieve Dr., for her caption, "Did you say I was too late for the Miss Ohio contest?" Good work readers!

"Yuk! You mean I have to kiss Mark Thellmann?" by Greg Bailey

Now pay special attention to this weeks contest pic and be sure to note all the details in the photo. They may help you come up with a witty caption. Even if they don't, it'll be more relative. Get those captions to me by 3 p.m. Tuesday and remember the prizes are two free tickets to the Ohio Theater in Columbus to see a swell flick!

Love,
Mark

Spellbound by 'Godspell'

by Debra A. Tinker
contributing writer

The most unfortunate thing about the Kent Acting and Touring Company's performance of "Godspell" Monday night was so many people missed it. The play was performed at Washington Middle School with great enthusiasm and audience participation was encouraged by the cast's singing and dancing in the aisles. During one of the numbers, one member of the cast was so bold as to hug and kiss a woman seated in the front row! Also, the cast shared wine with some of the audience during the jump-up-and-get-it-on number, "Light of the World."

The musical, based upon The Gospel according to St. Matthew had a cast of nine dressed as clowns, portraying Jesus Christ and the society in which He lived. Directed by James Thornton, the play consisted primarily of dramatized parables set to music.

All the performers threw themselves into their parts, but the most impressive character was Christ, portrayed by Chip Norwod, a Kent State student who plans to pursue a career in theatrics. His convincing performance was enhanced by his graceful, agile dancing and his clear, vibrant voice. Norwood's talent was not to be denied when many members of the audience were moved to tears during the emotional crucifixion scene.

However, spirits were lifted during the finale, as the cast carried Christ down the aisle and out of the auditorium, singing "Prepare Ye the Way of the Lord," and finally "Day by Day."

Scenery was simplistic, consisting of two saw - horses, two six-foot planks and three huge sections of hurricane fencing used as a backdrop, which later served as the Cross.

Carl Benton's talent as a choreographer was evident throughout the play, but the most memorable dance number was a softshoe done by Norwood and David Prittie (Judas), while they sang "All for the Best."

Accompanying the actors were Dennis Lang on the piano and Rich Fennig on the guitar and bass.

CAST FROM HEAVEN — This scene from the musical "Godspell" which was performed at Washington Middle School Monday evening, shows God standing in the background, immediately after rendering judgement. The girl on her back, tormented by the other two actresses on either side, was not allowed to enter through the golden gates.

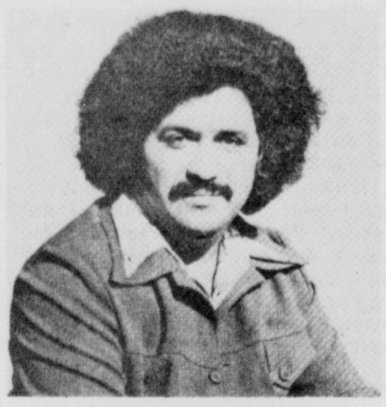

CHRIST CRIES — Jesus Christ, portrayed by Chip Norwood, is pictured experiencing emotional agony in the play "Godspell" which was performed by the Kent Acting and Touring Co. at Washington Middle School Monday evening.

Fender and Tillis to perform at Hara

Country concert in Dayton

EDITOR'S NOTE:
..The people running Dayton Hara Arena have been outdoing themselves this summer to please concert goers. Early in the summer, The Electric Light Orchestra; Earth, Wind and Fire; The Eagles and Roberta Flack have appeared. Yet to come is a country and western concert featuring Mel Tillis, Freddie Fender and Rosie Hart (Aug. 10); Graham Central Station and B.T. Express (Aug. 14); Jefferson Starship (Aug. 15); the Beach Boys (Aug. 21); Helen Reddy (Aug. 23); and tentatively War (Aug. 30). Since Hara Arena feels it has catered more to rock fans and neglected country and western patrons, the Tillis-Fender-Hart concert on Sunday evening, Aug. 10, is promised to balance the scales once again. The show will begin at 7:30 p.m. and general admission tickets are reasonably priced at $5 (advance) and $6 day of the show. Write: Hara Arena, 1001 Shiloh Springs Rd., Dayton, Ohio - 45415 or call 278-4778. Below are biographical sketches of both Tillis and Fender.

FREDDY FENDER

My real name is Baldemar G. Huerta. I was born in the south Texas valley border town of San Benito. I'm a Mexican-American, better yet, a Tex-Mex. I just picked up my stage name, Freddy Fender, in the late fifties as a name that would help my music sell better with "gringos". Now I like the name.

Music was part of me, even in my early childhood. I can still remember sitting on the street corner facing Pancho Galvin's grocery store, plunking at my three-string guitar. It didn't have a back on it, but it sure sounded pretty good to me and the crowd of little kids listening. Music kept alot of us happy, even when it was hard for our Mamas to put beans on the table.

We began migrating north as farm workers when I was about ten. We worked beets in Michigan, pickles in Ohio, baled hay and picked tomatoes in Indiana. When that was over came cotton picking time in Arkansas. All we really had to look forward to was making enough money to have a good Christmas in the "valley", where somehow I'd always manage to get my mother to buy me a guitar if the old one was worn out.

When I was sixteen I dropped out of high school and joined the Marines for three years. I got to see California, Japan and Okinawa, but mainly I got my point of view from the time I spent in the brig. It seemed that I just couldn't adjust myself to such a disciplined way of life. I always liked to play the guitar in the barracks and to drink, so much so that sometimes I forget where or who I was.

The late fifties found me back in San Benito, playing beer joints, Chicano dances and starting my singing career. I even began recording some all - Spanish Chicano records and by 1958 these were doing great in Texas and Mexico.

Next I turned to some Tex-Mex rockabilly music for recordings and cut "Holy One" and my big hit "Wasted Days and Wasted Nights" in 1959. In 1960 I cut "Crazy, Crazy Baby". Everything went beautifully until May, Friday 13, 1960. I was busted for "grass" in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. I'm not bitter, but if friends ask I still say the three years I spent in Angola State prison was a long time for such a little mistake.

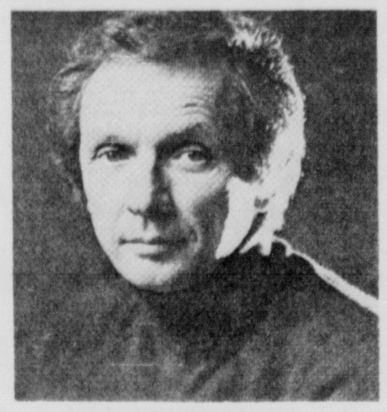

My time in prison was hard, but music made it better. I can remember when by bass player and I (we were busted together) walked into Angola, carrying our guitar and bass instead of our clothes. Then every Saturday and Sunday we would play on the "walk" for our fellow convicts. I even recorded an album of Chicano songs on a portable tape recorder at the prison.

In July, 1963 I headed home from prison on a Trailways bus, but soon came back to Louisiana, singing at "Papa Joe's" on Bourbon Street in New Orleans until 1968. It was there that I played music with such cats as Joe Berry, Joey Long, Skip Easterling and Aaron Neville.

By 1969 I was back in the "valley", playing again with a Chicano orchestra and learning new trades. I was beginning to feel that maybe I was getting too old and should go ahead and "hang up my gloves." So, I went to work as a mechanic and played music on weekends, getting $1.60 an hour and $28 a night picking so that I didn't starve to death. I took the G.E.D. test, received my high school diploma and even went to college for two years.

By 1974 I was living in Corpus Christi, Texas and a friend told me about Huey Meaux, a recording producer from Houston who had produced some big hits on B.J. Thomas, Joe Berry and my good friend Doug Sahm. He accepted my material and started recording.

It was in one of these sessions that I first cut my country and pop hit "Before The Next Teardrop Falls" on Huey's "Crazy Cajun" label. ABC-DOT Records purchased the record and signed me when it started happening on country stations in Houston. I couldn't be prouder. After twenty years of trying I've finally got my first national hit record!

MEL TILLIS

Mel Tillis is an entertainer, a consumate performer, an artist who can make people laugh and weep and sing, a man who translates experience into song. He records, writes, tours, runs a publishing company, makes appearances on television, radio and in film.

His recordings on the MGM label are always high in the national music charts — always top 10. His gift for composing has seen over 500 songs recorded, including "Detroit City," which went gold for Bobby Bare and has been cut by dozens of names in the field including Tom Jones and Dean Martin. He penned "Ruby, Don't Take Your Love To Town," which also sold a million for the rock group, Kenny Rogers and The First Edition.

His Sawgrass Muxic (publishing), licensed by BMI and with six full time writers on staff, has been a resounding success since it was formed 10 years ago and he makes over 200 concert dates each year with his traveling band, The Statesiders.

Television audiences have enjoyed Mel Tillis on major network and syndicated shows that include: Tony Orlando and Dawn, Dinah!, the Tonight Show, Mike Douglas, Merv Griffin, Dean Martin, the Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour (as a regular), Hee Haw, Love, American Style, the Ian Tyson Show in Canada, several of the Jerry Lewis Telethons and the Grand Ole Opry, to name a few.

Movie goers are enjoying Mel's dual roles as himself and as a service station attendant in the current motion picture, "W.W. & The Dixie Dance Kings," a 20th Century Fox release.

Watching Mel Tillis, listening to him sing and move and sway an audience with la de da, it's hard to comprehend that this is the same man who, as a kid in Pahokee, Florida, took a lot of razzing about his speech. "When I was three I had malaria, and as a result began stuttering. Some people said it was an emotional problem and would go away. I felt embarrassed and sensitive about it, but it didn't go away."

Tillis attended several university speech clinics until, in the late 50's, he decided the stuttering was something he could just live with.

"I had been unable to meet people, was afraid to get up in front of an audience. I even had a fear of answering the telephone. But let me tell you, it's much better to face the stuttering than to run away from it," he says. Now it's paying off as a comedy ploy for Tillis and fans have come to expect a funny story from the man who takes about twice the time to get it out. It surprises many people Tillis has no such problem when he sings.

"Singing is a kind of mechanical helper," he explains. "With the various instruments playing along, the rhythm and everything moving, my voice just seems to flow with it. Like following the bouncing rubber ball."

Although Tillis did record his smash hit, "Ruby," he didn't attempt "Detroit City." "I wrote a talking part in 'Detroit City' which was a stupid thing on my part. If I had tried to record it I'd still be in the studio!" That song, by the way, has been cut by well over 100 different singers and musical groups.

Mel has no set formula for writing. "I hear a lot of writers say that you have to be poor, to suffer, to be successful. I'm not sure that's entirely true, although I do think it helps if you've known poverty in your early life, or even yesterday. Having had it rough helps you interpret a song with a little more feeling," he says.

Timing, in Tillis' opinion, is the most important aspect of show business. "My first big break was filling in for another artist on a Duke of Paducah Show. I just happened to be there when an agent asked if I wanted to sub." Webb Pierce opened another door for Tillis when he recorded his "I'm Tired" some 18 years ago. Since then, more than two dozen major music awards have been given Tillis for his outstanding contributions in song. Other top songwriting achievements include "Memory Maker," "Sawmill" and "I Ain't Never," among others. He has written close to 1,000 songs.

One of the funniest entertainers in or out of country music, Tillis' ad lib style comes strictly from personal experiences. "I just start telling some of the things that have happened to me. I add a bit to the routines as I go along and of course, funny things seem to keep happening to and around me."

'Two by Two' closes Barn Theater season

Richard Rodgers' musical comedy "Two by Two" closes the premier season of the Sabina Barn Theater this Friday and Saturday, Aug. 8-9.

This heartwarming version of the Biblical story of Noah has won acclaim from previous Barn Theater audiences.

Noah has exactly one week to build an ark and take aboard every living thing two by two; including one stubborn son who doesn't want to go. Renewed faith in God sees Noah and his family through forty turbulent days and nights on the ark.

The Barn Theatre which operates under auspices from the regional camping committee of the West Ohio Conference of the United Methodist Church, had a highly successful first season according to managing director Fred Thayer.

Thayer states, "From this first season I've seen the need for more good theater in this area and we are looking forward to returning next summer with an even bigger and better program."

Curtain time for both shows is set for 8:15 p.m. with smorgasbord dinner being served at 6:30 p.m. Dinner reservations should be made six days in advance at the box office (513) 584-2671, 1-5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Dr. McFall retired in 1972 after 40 years as a minister and leader in the Methodist church. The last 18 years he was senior minister of First United Methodist Church here.

A 1927 graduate of DePauw University, he was a former DePauw trustee. He was minister at Irvington United Methodist Church, Indianapolis, First United Methodist Church, Columbus, and First United Methodist Church, Crown Point.

Research grant made

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Research Corp. of New York City has made a $7,050 grant to the University of Toledo to aid Dr. James E. Gano, associate professor of chemistry, in his attempt to synthesize substances severely twisted from the normal shapes, the university said.

New lottery claim probed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The State Auditor's office is investigating complaints that Ohio Lottery employes were promised pay raises if they contributed to the mayoral campaign of James F. Dickerson, deputy lottery director.

State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson confirmed Wednesday that his office was investigating the complaints but added that investigators have "turned up nothing conrete."

Because lottery workers are not civil employes, Ferguson said that there is nothing illegal about lottery personnel contributing to the Cleveland mayoral campaign of Dickerson. But he said it would have been illegal for donations to be tied to pay raises granted to 30 employes in June.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer reports that Thomas B. Burnett, the head of computer operations for the lottery, said he was one of nine lottery employes who contributed to Dickerson's campaign.

Dickerson denied he has asked any lottery employe for money and added that Burnett probably made the allegations because he did not get a raise.

Florida native gets Toledo post

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Evelyn Wright, a native of Clewiston, Fla., has been name assistant director of student development at the University of Toledo, it was announced Wednesday.

The student development program was established in 1969 to help recruit economically and educationally disadvantaged students who have demonstrated college aptitude and to give them financial assistance.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Mention ABC's "NFL Monday Night Football" and most fans will talk of Howard Cosell's mouth, Alex Karras' weird humor, Fred Williamson's ineptness or that good ole boy of past seasons, Dandy Don Meredith, who now hangs his hat at NBC.

Few talk about Frank Gifford because he's the quiet man in ABC's noisy booth. He does his job without fuss, expertly, with a good supply of low-key humor. He may never make it at the rate he's going.

In fact, the 44-year-old native of Los Angeles almost didn't make it into sportscasting in the first place, having given serious consideration to movie acting while still in college.

Gifford, an All-American football star at the University of Southern California before joining the New York Giants, said he'd had small parts in a number of films while at USC.

But after joining the Giants and achieving a certain amount of fame in Fun City, he started thinking seriously about sportscasting in 1957, while still a Giants regular.

That year, he filled in on a local radio sports show for Phil Rizzuto, the ex-Yankee shortstop. He got the bug for the business, dropped the film idea and has been a sportscaster ever since.

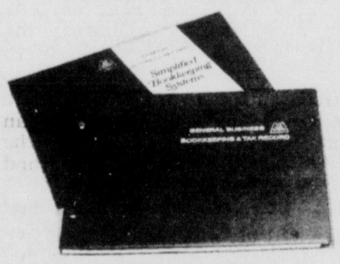

Ex-athletes who go into movies — like Williamson — don't seem to get hassled by colleagues in their new line of work. It's still a game.

But ex-athletes who go into sportscasting occasionally are resented by sportscasters who've never been pro athletes. And Gifford admits he drew his share of resentment when he started in broadcasting.

"And I think rightfully so," he adds. "They work all their lives at it, for maybe 15-20 years, and then they finally get into what you might call the big time.

"And it's kind of tough for someone like that to work that hard and all of a sudden see a man come off the football field and sit alongside him, to jump all these steps.

"Yup, that Harold is sure with it. I mean, when he told me about how I could write all the checks I want for just $2 a month, why I warmed to the idea pretty quick-like. He said a Huntington All-In-One Account gave me many other bank services besides. Now that's a bargain. Yup, that Harold has some dang good modern ideas. But that hat. Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Buxom gal sells peek and, with it, her good name

DEAR ABBY: I was invited to a house party last Saturday given by a woman who works with me. (I'm a 23-year-old divorcee.)

A rather good-looking guy introduced himself and said, "another fellow and I have a $20 bet on. He says you're wearing falsies, and I say you're not. If you prove it to me, the $20 is yours."

It so happens that I am 38-26-34, and I don't need falsies, so I said, "You win." Then I took him into the bedroom, unbuttoned my blouse just far enough to prove it and gave him a quick look.

He collected the $20 from his friend and gave it to me. I told him I was going to put it in the poor box at church the next morning, which is exactly what I did.

On Monday it was all over the office that I had done a strip-tease dance at the party!

Abby, I swear, I'm telling it like it was. Do you think what I did was so terrible? It was for a good cause.

MISS JUDGED

DEAR MISS: Face it, dear. You sold a quick peek for $20-a foolish gambit for a young woman who values her reputation.

DEAR ABBY: When does a mother say no? I am 77, have worked in factories for 44 years and have raised three sons alone after an early divorce. Two of my boys are fine. The youngest is my problem.

Mel, now 50, was in the Navy and graduated from college under the G.I. bill, but his big dream was getting into show business. (He is a good musician but not good enough to work the big time, which is all he will settle for.)

I have lost track of the money Mel has cost me. It seems like all I do is draw money out of the bank for him. My income is only $260 a month, and I am eating up my nest egg.

My other sons tell me I am foolish and that Mel can work if he wants to. (They have both sent him money but gave up.) Mel can sell, but he hates to get up in the morning and work a regular routine. He still thinks he can make it in show business.

How can a mother refuse her son? I love him so much. He never married. What am I to do?

MOTHER LOVE

DEAR MOTHER: Don't send Mel another penny! He probably never stuck with a job because he knew he didn't have to-Mother would support him. Tell him that you are all tapped out.

Not everyone can do what he wants to do for a living, in which case he does what he CAN. At 50, it's time Mel became a man. And at 77, you've earned a rest.

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter written by the lady who was told off when she mistook a little boy for a "nice little girl" in the supermarket.

When I was a kid, I remember going to the carnival, and for 25, a man would guess your weight. Now for another .25, he'll guess your sex.

Judy Collins' film focuses on piano teacher

By GREG McGARRY
Associated Press Writer

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Folksinger Judy Collins says she's thrilled that her documentary film about her former piano teacher, Dr. Antonia Brico, has resulted in more engagements for the noted female conductor. But Miss Collins says that wasn't her intention in making "Antonia: a Portrait of the Woman."

"I'm thrilled," Miss Collins said after a recent showing the film at the Saratoga Film Festival. "She now has two managers! She's been honored by Berkeley. She has a concert in the Hollywood Bowl, The American Symphony has contacted her. Most of your symphonies have contacted her, in fact.

"The fact that it helped her out is wonderful," she added. "But the film stands on its own . . . that's more important. This was not a crusade. This was a portrayal of someone's life I knew was interesting.

The film, nominated for an Academy Award in the best documentary category last year, portrays the struggle of the elderly woman who was frustrated throughout her life as she tried to break into the all-male circle of conductors. Dr. Brico is 73.

The film has been highly acclaimed, winning the Christopher Award, the Independent Film Critics Award and named one of the 10 best films of 1974 by Time magazine.

Miss Collins, 36, began studying piano under Dr. Brico in Denver when she was 9 years old.

"I broke from her instruction a long time ago when I was 16." Miss Collins said. "I said to myself, 'I want something besides the piano for breakfast, lunch and dinner.'" She said she practiced six hours daily.

Miss Collins switched to an old guitar her father had given her and eventually established herself as one of the top folksingers in the country.

As Miss Collins and codirector Gill Godmilov show in the film, Dr. Brico was frustrated at various stages of her career because she could not find a full-time job conducting.

In an interview segment of the 56-minute-long film, Miss Collins asked Dr. Brico if she takes pride in being a female pioneer in the field. "I would have given up that odious distinction to have conducted more," she replied. It was a moving scene, fraught with emotion, as the aging conductor asked her former student how she would like it if she only could give five performances a year.

"I have five performances a year," Dr. Brico said. "I'm strong enough to have five a month. . . It's like giving birth to a baby and then having it taken away from you."

JUDY COLLINS

Miss Collins said she had to prod Dr. Brico into revealing such feelings.

"First of all it occurred to me that this was my teacher and I didn't want to antagonize her. But I had to prod her. I had to almost attack her into revealing certain things. But I was surprised at her ability to open up."

Dr. Brico made headlines in 1935 when she conducted the New York Women's Symphony in New York's Town Hall. Three years later she became the first woman to conduct the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra. For years she has conducted a community orchestra in Denver.

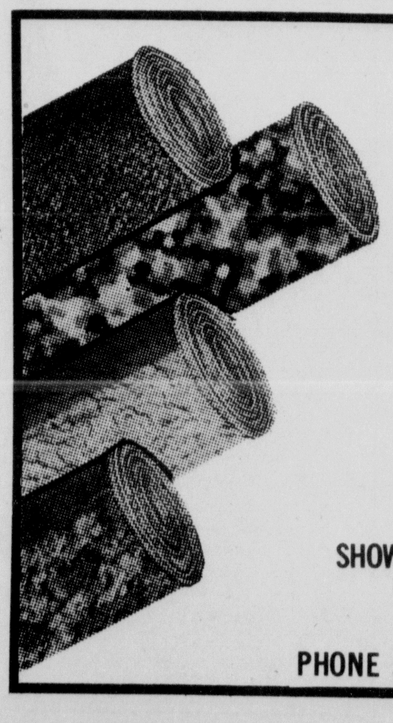

Miss Collins said she decided to make the film about three years ago when she renewed her friendship with Dr. Brico.

"The way I got to the film was I found myself confronted with an idea — a project — that I had in mind," she said. "I realized that her life was something extraordinary that I'd have to share. I looked for the medium that would help me and settled on film because I was giddy and foolish enough to jump into something I knew nothing about."

She said her friendship with Dr. Brico grew considerably in the six months of filming. And she Dr. Brico even reacted with praise when Miss Collins sang her a song she had written.

"Although we were always friends, I wasn't always quite sure that she was terribly wild about what I was doing," Miss Collins explained. "She still says, 'You have the hands for piano. You could have gone right to the top.' "

Letters from readers of R-H

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Whether to applaud or condemn the presentation of Godspell presented Monday evening at the Washington C. H. Middle School auditorium depends upon what you were looking for. If it was the desire to be entertained that motivated you to pay the modest entrance fee, in my opinion you received a bargain. If you went expecting to observe a professionally executed theatrical production, you again in my opinion should have gone away from the performance well satisfied. However, if you went to hear what the title promises, the good news concerning Jesus Christ, you left deeply disappointed.

My reason for saying this has nothing to do with the unorthodox way in which the life and teachings of Jesus was presented, although I must admit it did take some getting used to. But my appreciation for the great evangelist of a bygone generation, Billy Sunday, who often emphasized a point by literally leaping over the pulpit, a feat which his athletic abilities made possible, has taught me that God can honor and use unorthodox ways of communication.

My dismal reaction to the presentation of Godspell lies in the fact that it never got to the good news about Jesus Christ. While promising to present the story of Jesus as found in the book of Matthew, it did not. "Godspell" closes with a dead Jesus, while Matthew's account closes with a resurrected, living Lord. Had the actual life of Jesus ended as presented in Godspell, there would never have been a Godspell production, for Jesus would have been forgotten with the passing of his generation. The followers of Jesus left the place where he was crucified dead to return to their former occupations and way of life, convinced that they had been wrong in believing Jesus to be their long promised saviour. It was not until he arose from the dead that their faith was restored, and they became heroic, proclaimers of the gospel which changes human lives and influences the course of history.

Godspell is incorrectly named for it says nothing about the good news concerning Jesus Christ, and its effect can only be misleading and harmful to the Christian cause.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

In Saturday's letter to the editor, I'm in 100 per cent agreement with William E. Cupp's viewpoint on the fire hydrant painting.

Mr. Everitt Robbins' company loyalty supercedes the loyalty to his country. This is fine to a point but after all we will never again see a bicentennial.

Where would his employer be if it weren't for loyal and dedicated Americans for the past 200 years? If it weren't for them he wouldn't have any company to work for.

I think Mr. Robbins showed very poor judgment on his decision. I think he could have used a little more descretion in what he did.

The pitiful part of this is that the employes of the water company are getting the blunt end of this because Mr. Robbins is now vacationing.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Mrs. Charles Myers (my advisor) and I just recently returned from a most enjoyable and rewarding week in Washington D.C., where we attended the National Convention of the Future Homemakers of America held at the Washington Hilton Hotel. We had a great convention and were able to do quite a bit of sight-seeing.

I want to publicly express my thanks and gratitude to the people of Fayette County for their concern about young people and for helping to make my trip possible. This was a wonderful experience and one I shall always treasure among my teenage memories.

While at the convention, I met many great kids from all over the U.S. I know I have made friendships I shall never forget.

I want again to thank Mrs. Myers, for all the time and help she has given me, my family for their help and encouragement and all the fine people who helped to make my trip possible.

I felt very proud to represent my school, community and the state of Ohio.

Phantom 'candidate' running for mayor

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Omaha's 1977 mayoral campaign is off to an early start, or is it?

Fifty-two billboard signs proclaiming the candidacy of Jim Haubenschild now dot the city, but nobody seems to know Haubenschild.

Al Johnson, manager of Imperial Outdoor Advertising, Inc., said his firm was asked to design and erect the signs by an agency that asked to remain anonymous.

"The agency has assured me he is a real live person," said Johnson, adding that he has been doing business for about 10 years with the agency involved.

He said there didn't seem to be anything unscrupulous or illegal about the ad campaign, so he felt obligated to take the order.

"I don't know Mr. Haubenschild," he said, "I was told that his identity and other information will be made known later this month."

If Haubenschild really intends to run for the office now held by Mayor Edward Zorinsky, he had better check the rules.

Haubenschild is not a registered voter in Omaha, a must to become mayor. And spokesmen for the Douglas County Republican and Democratic Committees are questioning the legality of the signs because they don't say who is paying for the political advertising.

Beyond that, no one at either Democratic or Republican headquarters has ever heard of him. He is not listed in the telephone directories for the past five years, and he does not have a car registered in Douglas County.

An official of one major Omaha advertising firms says he thinks the whole thing is part of a project to test the community's awareness of outdoor advertising.

"The signs are probably testing the power of billboards, and later someone will make a survey in the community asking if people know Jim Haubenschild," the advertising executive said.

Whoever is undertaking the campaign must be serious or rich, because the signs each cost about $100 per month, according to Johnson.

There are about 36,000 fire departments across the nation.

In the busiest unit of the busiest department in the country firemen respond to calls every 45 minutes — day and night.

This is Engine Company 82, Ladder Number 31, Battalion 27 of the New York City Fire Department.

"The Bronx is Burning," a first-run television program, will examine the firemen of Engnine Company 82, the job they do and the place they do it — New York's South Bronx ghetto.

Appropriately, the telecast takes place in the hot summer months, when blighted neighborhoods across the country frequently erupt in flame.

FIREMAN-AUTHOR Dennis Smith is one of the people who provide some compelling insights to go along with the action of "The Bronx is Burning."

Air time is 10 p.m. Monday, Aug. 11 on WBNS-TV (Ch. 10) for this third of six specials in the "Window on the World" series, produced by the British Broadcasting Corporation and Time-Life Television and sponsored by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. and the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio.

The wide-ranging series, narrated by Burgess Meredith, began with biographical documentaries on Rose Kennedy and Nikita Khrushchev. The third program represented an exciting change of pace.

The South Bronx is a place of spiritual poverty, a place of no hope and no way out. And the hopelessness is manifested in fire. Last year, Engine Company 82 responded to more than 10,000 calls. On each trip, the firemen have learned to expect the unexpected — and the dangerous.

The buildings they must enter may have been booby-trapped. Or they may have to fight the very people they have come to save. Roaming gangs and desperate junkies have made the area a no man's land for municipal services and turned the people into nomads, moving from building to building as each tenement is torched or burglarized.

British correspondent Jeremy James interviews the men who put their lives on the line every day. Featured is Dennis Smith, whose book, "Report from Engine Company 82," became a national best-seller.

"Technology hasn't shown us a safer way to fight a fire — except getting closer to it and putting water on it," Smith says.

"The Bronx is Burning" will show the viewer exactly what Smith is talking about — and more.

Following "The Bronx Is Burning," next month's fourth program in the never-before-seen "Window" series will explore a little-known side of Russia, "KGB — The Soviet Secret Police."

The first Zeppelin flight was in 1900 by Germany's Count Ferdinanc von Zeppelin. He flew the first of his long series of rigid-frame airships, which attained a speed of 18 miles per hour and got 3½ miles before its steering gear failed, on July 2, 1900.

Police officer faces discipline

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A seven-year member of the Indianapolis Police Department was suspended Wednesday for 10 days in the beating of a handcuffed youth.

Chief Kenneth Hale announced Patrolman Jerome T. Warren, 30, was suspended without pay for allegedly striking the youth on or about the face. He will appear next week at a disciplinary hearing which will decide a punishment, Hale said. He could be dismissed from the force.

Meanwhile, the FBI said Wednesday it was entering the case to determine whether the civil rights of Harold A. Baker, 16, were violated. Police said Baker and a companion, Frederick Naumayer, 15, jumped from a stolen truck July 15 and tried to flee. Naumayer was shot to death and Baker captured.

Voters turn down Tiffin school levy

TIFFIN, Ohio (AP) — Voters in the Tiffin Joint Vocational School District defeated a 10-year, 3.5-mill levy in a special election Tuesday.

District officials said the 3-1 defeat would mean JVS pupils from Tiffin, Fostoria and surrounding communities would have to attend another nearby vo-ed school.

Bowen presides over medic board

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Gov. Otis R. Bowen presided over the swearing in of a new Indiana Board of Medical Registration and Examination Wednesday.

All seven members of the previous board resigned in a dispute over the relicensing of Dr. Robert E. Hales, who escaped from Beatty Memorial Hospital at Westville where he was confined as a criminal sexual psychopath. Hales was hired as a physician at the Indiana State Prison.

Bowen, a physician, assumed the acting chairmanship of the meeting and suggested how the board should select its officers. He noted members could elect anyone they wanted as president but added the chairman traditionally has been a medical doctor of the same political party as the governor.

So the three Republican physicians on the new board caucused and Dr. Ernest R. Beaver of Rensselaer was selected.

Hearst probe continues

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A federal grand jury reconvenes here today to question at least one reluctant witness believed to have spent part of the 1974 summer with missing heiress Patricia Hearst.

Micki McGee Scott has been subpoenaed, and reportedly will be granted immunity from future prosecution for her testimony. But she has already pledged not to cooperate.

Her husband, Jack, a sports critic and former athletic director at Oberlin College in Ohio, has been subpoenaed to appear before the jury Sept. 4.

"We don't look forward to it, but of course we're prepared to go to jail," Scott said.

The Scotts reportedly rented a house in South Canaan, Pa., near Scranton, last summer where Miss Hearst and two of her Symbionese Liberation Army friends hid.

Miss Hearst, 21, daughter of Randolph A. Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, was kidnaped Feb. 4, 1974, by the SLA.

WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA

Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

President Ford's thirty-sixth veto and the fourth Congressional override of that veto must have the American people wondering just what is going on in the Nation's Capital.

It basically boils down to the question of whether the Federal Government will continue to pile deficit on top of deficit with its spending, or whether Congress will give some meaning to budget reform and hold this kind of spending to a minimum.

THE IDEAL policy would be to eliminate federal deficits entirely, but the recent history of federal spending has shown that neither the budget makers in the White House nor Congressional spenders are inclined to bite the bullet where staying within the budget is concerned.

The Presidential veto is a perfectly legitimate and necessary power, and one of the best of those checks and balances among our three co-equal branches of the government. Established by the Constitution, the Presidential veto has played an important role in the legislative process by making it possible for excessive Congressional action to be modifided and for important legislation to be considered further. It is not necessarily the dead-end of legislation.

Earlier this year, Congress approved a guideline budget, projecting spending of $367 billion, which carries a deficit of about $68.8 billion. This was the first action under the Budget Reform act passed last year, which established new House and Senate Budget committees to develop a Congressional version of the budget. President Ford had previously requested that the line be held at $60 billion, and he apparently intends to do all possible to hold the deficit to that amount.

Under the new budget-making procedure, Congress is required to set spending limits, based on priorities, and then abide by those ceilings. However, it will certainly exceed its own deficit spending limit, with action on most appropriations bills yet to come.

To make matters worse, Congress has already raised the national debt ceiling to a record high of $577 billion, and will be asked to raise it again sometime before November 15, when the current ceiling expires.

Despite three successful Presidential vetoes of spending bills that exceeded the budget figures, the danger of a deficit as high as $100 billion still exists. I have supported many of the President's veto actions, because I believe that we must draw the line on federal spending and federal deficits — and stick to it!

During this week's House debate on the Presidential veto of a $2 billion health services bill, one member said, "Cutting spending is a thankless task" —and he was right. It is also a difficult one. The effects of legislation on the economy and on all American taxpayers must be weighed against the need and potential benefits of programs authorized or funded through such legislation.

The double problems of recession and inflation currently plaguing our economy have necessarily become overriding considerations in most legislation before Congress and before the President for signature.

We have only to see the spectacle of New York City to realize the consequences of a government spending money that it does not have. The Federal Government may be around to help New York City, but who will bail out the Federal Government if it follows the same disastrous course?

The huge deficits being created pose a serious threat to our private enterprise system. They increase federal borrowing — which already accounts for more than two-thirds of the total borrowings in our capital markets — and this crowds out private borrowers. The net results are higher interest rates and more inflation.

THE COST of living is related directly to the inflation created by the Federal Government's policies of deficit spending and borrowing. Further rises in the cost of living affect all Americans.

Presidential veto action has occurred on legislation approved by Congress which calls for spending in excess of the President's budget recommendations. The health services bill, for example, authorized spending of $1.1 billion over the President's budget request for the next two years.

Every line item of spending has its supporters, no matter what the amount or the need for the program being funded. Yet, a vote to sustain a Presidential veto of an inflationary legislative package does not necessarily indicate opposition to those programs funded under such legislation.

It is more often a directive to Congress to go back to the drawing boards, take another look at the budget it was supposed to follow, and come forth with a more reasonable spending figure.

After all, no matter what the legislation may be, it will be financed with the taxpayers' money. They will foot the bill for the federal spending involved — and the inflation created.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. defense analysts hope the recent talks between U.S. and Soviet leaders may help break a 22-month deadlock in negotiations over mutual force reductions in central Europe.

They are looking for signs of progress when East-West diplomats enter the next round of the force reduction talks in Vienna next month in the wake of meetings between President Ford and Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev in Helsinki last week.

Pentagon sources say Western diplomats will push a proposal for some cutbacks in U.S. nuclear weapons in Western Europe in exchange for withdrawal by the Russians of a tank army.

The Western proposal reportedly would involve a reduction of some 1,000 U.S. tactical nuclear warheads from the 7,000 said to be in Western Europe, as well as a cutback in fighterbombers and short-range missiles which would deliver them against enemy targets.

The United States keeps nuclear weapons in Europe to deter possible Soviet attack. U.S. officials have said such weapons would be used if necessary to prevent the North Atlantic alliance's forces from being overwhelmed by superior tankled Soviet armies.

Under the Western proposal being put forward, the Russians would compensate for a reduction in U.S. tactical nuclear weapons in Europe by removing from the central region a full army of 68,000 men and 1,700 tanks.

According to current Pentagon estimates, the Russians and their Warsaw Pact allies number about 930,000 men and more than 16,000 tanks in central Europe, facing 777,000 allied troops and 6,000 tanks.

The rival tactical air forces are roughly equivalent, with about 2,900 planes on both sides. But allied planes are regarded as superior for now.

Sources familiar with the negotiations say the Russians have consistently refused to consider a Western proposal for a ceiling of about 700,000 men on both sides.

EASIER TO HOLD THAN THE MONEY — Bill Boylan's little gold block is worth somewhere in the vicinity of $3,100. He had it refined in Cincinnati by a gold and silver refining company and it consists of many pieces of gold jewelry and old gold rings Boylan has collected during his many years in the jewelry business. According to him, "It's much more of a conversation piece than a bunch of old rings and therefore it's not for sale; besides I'm kinda attached to it."

Jewelry remnants now form valuable display

By MARK THELLMANN

Now that the government has made it legal for private citizens to own gold, some have taken advantage of the investment, but few have displayed this prized yellow substance where those who have never seen it in any quantity outside of a capped tooth or a wedding band can view it.

But, Bill Boylan, owner of the Boylan Jewelry store, 126 N. Fayette St., has a little block of it he'll let you take a look at. It's on exhibit in his store display window during the daytime, but it disappears every night into a hiding place where he knows it will be safe.

The mini-gold brick, composed of gold remnants such as rings and other jewelry he has acquired from his jewelry business over the past several years, fits easily into one's hand; much easier than a wad of money equal its worth of approximately $3,100. Of course that value was computed from the market price last week which stood at $173.12 per ounce Friday. The value of gold changes almost daily.

Boylan, who started learning the jewelry trade at the age of 17 (in 1947) decided to have the block made a couple of months ago. "The Cincinnati Gold and Silver Refining Co. did the job for me, but it took them six weeks," Boylan stated. "It's a pretty complicated process and involves a great deal of time," he added.

The block is stamped "Cincinnati," along with the weight; 18, 18.375 ounces; 999.9 fine and a serial number. Although gold is a relatively soft metal, you can't bend the yellow rectangle or scratch it with your fingernail.

"It's the weight which surprises most people when they pick it up to examine," Boylan said. "Although it's marked 18.375 ounces, there are 'tory' ounces, 12 of which make one pound instead of the common 16. Therefore, it weighs around a pound and one-half."

Judge has trying time with mace-spraying man

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — It was a trying day for Hamilton County Municipal Court judges.

First, it was a mace-spraying defendant who shattered the courtroom calm. Then the county's public defender's office and one of its lawyers was cited for contempt of court.

Larry Horton, 45, a selfstyled attorney, began spraying court officials after Judge Joseph Luebbers ordered the Cincinnati man held for psychiatric examination.

Horton, in court on charges of criminal trespassing, was subdued and removed from the court.

Meanwhile, Judge Rupert Doan was having troubles of his own.

He leveled contempt charges against attorney John Podesta, a public defender, who was representing a man cited for driving while intoxicated.

Judge Doan took the action when it was discovered Podesta's client earns more than $15,000 a year-twice as much as allowed under legal guidelines.

Podesta argued that the defendant's take-home pay was $150 a week or $5 above the guidelines for indigency qualifications.

Judge Doan stood firm, charging Podesta with contempt and citing the entire public defender's office. He defended his action, saying "a number is a number and a rule is a rule."

It was the fourth incident within a week that a public defender has been cited with contempt by a Hamilton County judge.

Two local delegates attending state 4-H conservation camp

Jay Bloomer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcom Bloomer, 1259 Hess Road, and Jane Kearney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kearney, 3604 White Road, are participating along with 200 other Ohio youngsters in the 40th Ohio 4-H Conservation Camp through August 9 at Camp Ohio.

According to Jack Sommers, Fayette County 4-H extension agent, while at camp Jay and Jane will learn about water resources, outdoor life and recreation, forestry, land and its use and wildlife.

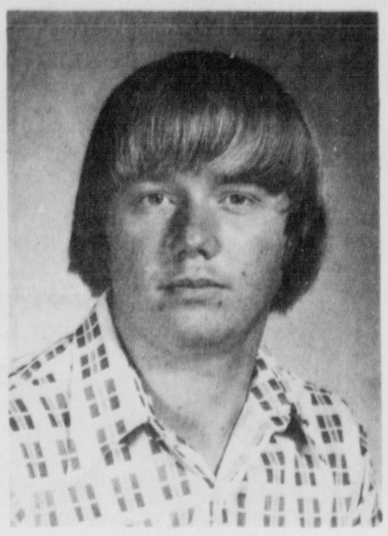

Campers will also visit a nearby sawmill, strip mine, fish hatchery, paper mill and experimental watershed.

The camp is sponsored by the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service with support from Gene Derickson, Ohio Federation of Soil and Water Conservation districts, Columbus; C. L. Horn, Federal-Cartridge Corp., Minneapolis, Minn., and R. H. Oman, the Columbus Foundation (Rausenberger Conservation Fund), Columbus.

"Such conservation camps are held in 30 states and annually provide thousands of youngsters with the opportunity to learn more about the conservation of natural resources," Sommers said.

JANE KEARNEY

JAY BLOOMER

The Ohio Conservation Camp, presently in its 40th year, is one of the oldest conservation education programs in existence.

In tribute to the bicentennial, delegates will tour Schoenbrunn Village, Roscoe Village and attend "Trumpet in the Land" an outdoor historical drama of the early settlement in Tuscarawas County.

Fees for the two local delegates were paid by the Fayette County 4-H committee.

'Leaves festival' slated Oct. 16-19 in Bainbridge

BINBRIDGE — The colorful pageantry and autumn splendor of the fall foilage will reign over the 1975 Fall Festival of Leaves celebration in Bainbridge, located in a picturesque section of the state in southwestern Ross County.

The event will be held Oct. 16-19.

Various special events have been planned to entertain the estimated 30,000 tourists who will attend this year's festival. Daily activities include flea markets, arts and crafts exhibits, several musical shows, parades, amusement rides, and self-conducted tours of the Skyline Drive, historic landmarks and the first dental school in the nation.

Added attractions include a hot air balloon ascension sponsored by the Huntington Bank of Columbus, a horse show, horse shoe pitching contest, karate demonstration, muzzle loader shoot, fiddler's and tobacco spitting contests, bass fishing clinic and a variety of craft exhibits including a shoemaker, glassblower, blacksmith, quilters and weavers.

James Krug of Bainbridge is chairman of the Fall Festival of Leaves celebration.

Brown to check Rhodes petitions

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Secretary of State Ted W. Brown said his office will begin today a "desk check" of Gov. James A. Rhodes' November ballot petitions before sending them back to county election boards for verification.

Rhodes and a contingent of supporters, including one Democratic senator, delivered to Brown's office Wednesday the signatures of 505,403 Ohioans who want the governor's four-part economic package on the statewide ballot.

The total by far exceeded the 307,201 required, but Brown pointed out that the law requires that the signatures be verified as those of qualified voters. Rhodes' petition drive, begun last spring after his proposed constitutional amendments bogged down in the legislature, exceeded the minimum by about 60 per cent.

"I am deeply grateful for the efforts of everyone who helped" the governor said, adding that the challenge ahead is to win approval of voters "to create jobs and take Ohioans off welfare and unemployment rolls."

Sen. Robert T. Secrest, D-20 Cambridge, a conservative Democrat who "trusts the governor's judgment" as to the needs of Ohio, said the program would help the state get back a greater share of the tax money it sends to Washington and the package should be approved for that reason if no other.

Rhodes told a news conference, in response to a question, that he sees nothing wrong with state employes helping promote the four issues, even on state time within certain bounds. "I don't think anyone should go in and give them the afternoons off," he said.

The governor as much an invited an investigation mentioned as a possibility by Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson, a Democrat, into such efforts by public employes. "If anyone wants to make some findings, they can start with me. I'm here right now on state time," Rhodes declared.

He explained that he thinks all Ohioans should take part in helping promote the state's economic future. "We're trying to take the misery out of the lives of 600,000 Ohioans who are unemployed," he added.

Airlines strike over

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The Air Line Pilots Association ended its three-day strike against Northwest Airlines early today with the signing of a new three-year contract, said W.J. Usery Jr., director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

A Northwest offical said there was a good chance some of the airline's flights would be resumed today but he said not many.

Northwest is the nation's seventh largest airline with major routes across the northern part of the United States and to Japan.

Cooler air sweeps over U.S. heartland

By The Associated Press

A large high pressure center over the Great Lakes kept most of the nation's heartland dry and relatively cool today. There were isolated thundershowers through much of the rest of the country as a quiet summer weather pattern continued.

Mild weather extended from New England through the middle Mississippi Valley. Temperatures elsewhere were higher under mostly sunny skies.

A cold front caused considerable cloudiness and thundershowers over the Appalachians and along much of the Atlantic Coast from New York and New England into northern Georgia. There were scattered showers also from southern Virginia into the Carolinas.

GREAT VALUES ON HOME APPLIANCES!!

Let's tour Ohio series

A visit to Ohio's oldest city, Marietta, and a trip across the Ohio River to Parkersburg, West Virginia, makes AAA's suggested tour this week a two-state venture.

MARIETTA

(1) Campus Martius Museum, corner of Washington, 2nd Sts. Museum brings to life the fort built at the first organized settlement in the Northwest Territory. Exhibits include the original home of the settlement's superintendent, Rufus Putnam, enclosed within the walls of the museum. Visitors may tour entire home, completely furnished as it would have been in the 1780's. Most furnishings actually belonged to the Putnam family. Also within the museum are exhibits of original objects portraying the Northwest Territory and early Ohio. Primitive oil paintings period rooms, tools, surveying instruments, craft projects, furniture and furnishings are displayed in two large and one small gallery. Admission charge.

(2) W.P. Snyder, Jr. One of the last stern-wheelers to travel the Ohio River. Built in 1918, continued in service until 1955. Moored adjacent to the Ohio River Museum, Washington and Front Sts. One of the first all metal towboats powered by steam on the Ohio River. Admission charge.

(3) Mound Cemetery. Contains the "Conus", an example of the prehistoric Moundbuilders' art. The burial place of a chief, it is 30 feet high. Within the cemetery are graves of many early settlers and Revolutionary War soldiers.

(4) Ohio River Museum, located on Front St. in Marietta on banks of Muskingum River. The Museum is composed of three separate elevated buildings connected by covered walkways, each dealing with different facets of Ohio's rivers and streams. The first area represents the natural history of the river, fish, and wildlife that live in or by the water. The middle enclosure deals with the age of the steamboat, complete with 19 elaborate Ohio and Muskingum river steamboat models. The final building shows how man has conquered the river's barriers with bridges, ferryboats and dams. A special dual admission is available for visitors to see both the River Museum and Campus Martius, located a blockaway, at a reduced rate.

(5) Muskingum Park. "Start Westward" Monument. Memorial to the start of the westward expansion of the Northwest Territory.

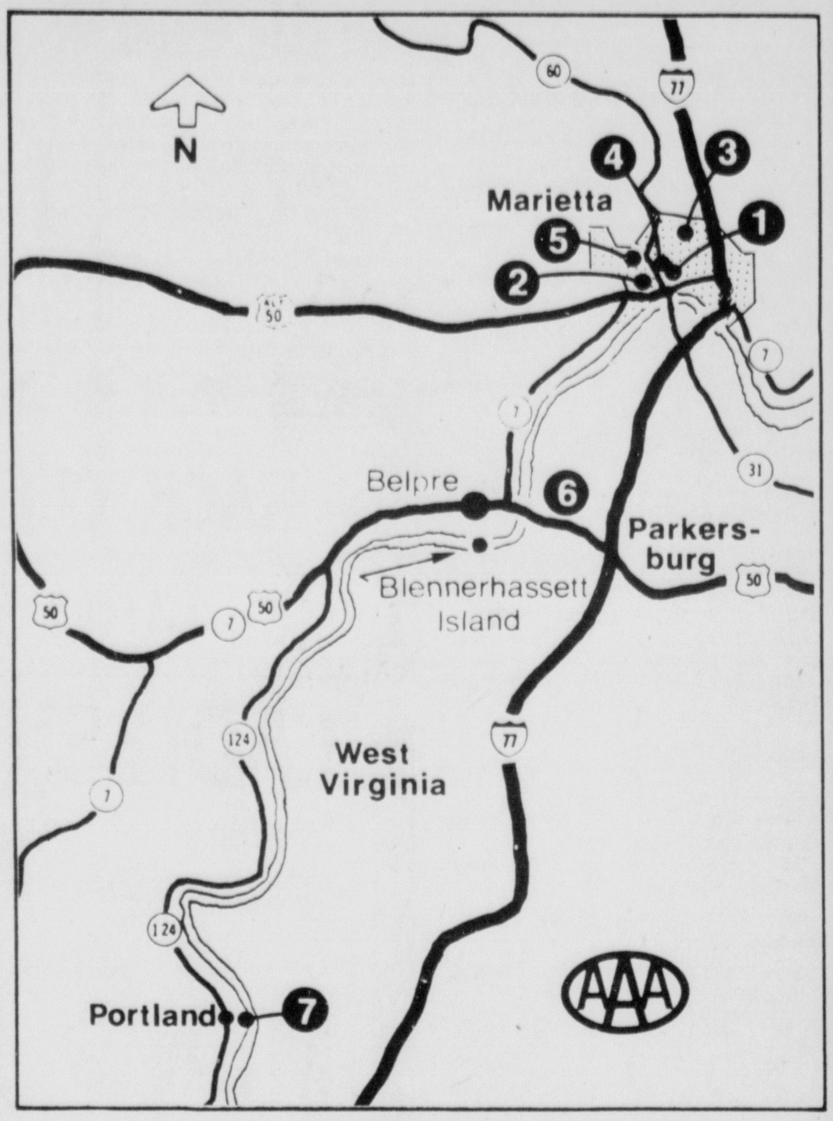

PARKERSBURG, W. VA.

(6) Parkersburg, W. Va. If you have time and gasoline, a trip to nearby Parkersburg, W. Va., would be worth it. City Park, 55 acres on Park Ave. 3 blocks north of U.S. 50, has game courts, swimming pool, pavilion and picnic facilities. Centennial Cabin and Museum, built in 1804, houses interesting relics and documents of pioneer days in Area. Admission charge.

Blennerhasset Island. 1 mile below Parkersburg in the Ohio River is Blennerhassett Island. Here in 1709, Harman Blennerhasset, a wealthy English immigrant, built the most palatial home west of the Alleghenies. It also was here that Aaron Burr is said to have plotted a conspiracy for establishing an empire in the Southwest Territory. A view of the island can be seen from the lookout on old Route 7.

HERE COMES AN ACE — At least that's the hope of Earl Crosswhite as he prepares to serve during a mixed-doubles match in the Washington C.H. Reds breeze past Giants

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds are laughing all the way to the National League West pennant.

"We're using all our players these days — it keeps everyone happy," said Manager Sparky Anderson after his muscled Reds walloped the San Francisco Giants 12-5 Wednesday.

One of those Sunshine Boys that Anderson used against San Francisco was Darrel Chaney. Subbing for Dave Concepcion at shortstop, Chaney collected three of the Reds' 20 hits and embellished his reputation as a Giant killer.

"I've got more than half my hits this season off Giants' pitching," said Chaney, who is batting .409 against San Francisco.

Coupled with the Los Angeles Dodgers' 5-4 loss to the Atlanta Braves Wednesday night, the Reds improved their mountainous lead in the West to 16½ games — their biggest of the season.

In the other National League games, the New York Mets beat the Montreal Expos 9-6 in a rain-shortened affair; the St. Louis Cardinals trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 and the San Diego Padres turned back the Houston Astros 6-1. The Chicago-Philadelphia game was rained out.

Chaney knocked in three runs with two doubles and a single and Cesar Geronimo belted a pair of triples to lead Cincinnati's high-powered attack.

Giants' starter Jim Barr was battered for nine hits and five runs in three innings.

Braves 5, Dodgers 4

Rowland Office and Dave May drilled run-scoring singles in the ninth inning to give Atlanta its victory over Los Angeles.

Dusty Baker walked to start the Atlanta ninth and moved to second on a single by Ed Goodson. The runners moved up on a sacrifice bunt before Office tied the game at 4-4 with a single.

Mets 9, Expos 6

Del Unser's three-run double highlighted a seven-run sixth inning and powered New York over Montreal in Roy McMillan's managerial debut. The Expos scored two runs in the ninth on a Mets' error and a bases-loaded walk and had nobody out when rain stopped play.

McMillan was named manager of the Mets earlier Wednesday after Yogi Berra was fired. The new manager had held a one-hour meeting with the team before the game.

Cardinals 4, Pirates 2

Buddy Bradford hit a home run and Ken Reitz tripled to spark a three-run St. Louis fifth and lead the Cardinals over Pittsburgh. St. Louis starter John Denny, 6-3, surrended only two singles to the National League Eastern Division leaders before running into trouble in the eighth inning, when the Pirates scored their only run.

Padres 6, Astros 1

Left-hander Randy Jones pitched a two-hitter and posted his 15th victory as San Diego defeated Houston. Jones, 15-6, a 22-game loser last year, lost his bid for his seventh shutout of the year in the third when Bob Watson led off with a triple and scored on Cliff Johnson's infield out.

Indians 5, Yanks 3

Rico Carty hit a three-run homer for Cleveland in the sixth but the big difference was reliever Dave LaRoche, who came in with the bases full of Yanks and nobody out in the eighth and struck out the side.

White Sox 11, Angels 1

Bill Melton knocked in five runs, three with a homer, and Jim Kaat posted his 16th victory with a five-hitter in the White Sox' rout of California. Melton slugged his 10th homer to cap a four-run first inning, singled for a run in the second and doubled one home in the eighth.

Red Sox 5, Brewers 2

Rick Burleson's double and Denny Doyle's single gave the Red Sox an eighth-inning run, their first in 18 innings, before they went to town in the ninth. Cecil Cooper's double and Rico Petrocelli's single tied it.

Yogi gets axed

McMillan new Mets field boss

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy McMillan, new manager of the New York Mets, will make his presence felt in the clubhouse, if not in the headlines.

McMillan, a nondescript second-stringer in the managerial ranks until he was named to replace the fired Yogi Berra, laid it on the line to his players in a team meeting before Wednesday night's 9-6 victory over the Montreal Expos.

"Yogi was a little closer to the players," said Mets third baseman Joe Torre, "but Roy lets everyone know just who the manager is.

"We had a team meeting before the game, and he told us what he expected," Torre said. "He asked us not to do anything different, just win ball games."

McMillan, 46, has been with the Mets as a coach under Berra since 1973 after managing the Mets farm team in Visalia, Calif.

"It's hard to say what I think," said outfielder Gene Clines, acquired in preseason from Pittsburgh. "It's my first year here. For most guys, it takes time to form an opinion.

"But one thing," Clines added, "there didn't seem to be any communication between the players and Yogi. Maybe when he benched a guy, he should have taken him aside and had a little chat."

The Mets' star pitcher, Tom Seaver, said he "had felt it coming" for some time and asked if he anticipated any changes under McMillan, he said: "Well, there's a different man managing. Sure, things will be different ... different in a very positive way.

"It's a great thing for Mac," he added.

The squat, 50-year-old Berra is only the second manager to win pennants in both major leagues. But this year, after 3½ years as the Mets' manager, Berra had guided New York nowhere. After ending a five-game losing streak Wednesday night in which they had gone through 55 scoreless innings, the Mets still were mired 8½ games behind the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

Yogi's job apparently had been in jeopardy since last season, when the club wound up in fifth place. "This whole thing is to a degree a hangover from last year," said Mets chairman of the board, M. Donald Grant.

Pfeifer secures finals spot

City tennis field narrows

One finals spot in the Men's Championship Flight of the City Tennis tournament is filled and the other rests on the outcome of tonights 6 p.m. match between Phil Snow and Douge Dye.

Maurice Pfeifer topped Earl Crosswhite in two sets, 6-0, 6-2, to advance to Sunday's final match in the tourney's top flight while Snow beat Steve Yambor, 7-6, 6-0, to earn the right to face Dye in the semifinals.

The winner of the Snow-Dye match will meet Pfeifer at 6 p.m. Sunday on the Washington Senior High School courts.

In men's first Flight action Wednesday, Rick Crooks beat Mike Domenico to move into that division's semifinals play.

Ron Hanna and Jeff Tuvell fill two of the remaining three spots in the semifinals with the other spot pending the outcome of the Mike Qualls-Rob Herron match.

In Men's Doubles competition, Joe Banks and Greg Gilmore took a touch match from Charlie Wright and Marty Rodgers, 4-6, 6-4 and 6-3. Yambor-Snow and Nelson Brownell - Pfeifer join Banks and Gilmore in the flight's semifinals.

Ron Hanna-Tom Palmaccio topped Jeff Cash-Bob Seymour, 6-4, 7-5, and Al Heer-Dustin Girton beat Jack Brennan-Jeff Tuvell in First Flight Doubles play.

In the Boys' 18-under division all four first-round matches have been completed with Greg Gilmore topping Scott Geyer, Mike Qualls beating Bryan Connell, Jeff Cash taking Brad Maust in three sets and Stuart Foster easily handling Butch Buckley.

The Qualls-Connell match went three sets of 5-7, 7-6 and 7-6, in favor of Qualls to be the closest contested match of the tourney.

Latricia Robinson topped Rose Ann Brownell, 6-1, 6-2, in Women's singles play and the team of Latricia Robinson and Sally Robinson beat Brownell and Beverly Qualls in the Women's Doubles competition.

In the only Mixed Doubles match, Jean Perrill-Latricia Robinson took two sets from Crosswhite-Qualls.

Tom Weiskopf eyes PGA golf crown

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Tom Weiskopf shrugged off the galling memory of his $50,000 disappointment at Westchester and put himself high today on the list of half-dozen men—no more—he thinks capable of winning the PGA golf crown.

"I have forgotten the tournament last week. It is over. It is final. You can't let a thing like that bug you," said the temperamental stylist who blew a seven-stroke halfway lead last weekend in one of the world's richest events.

"I don't feel I gave it away. After all, Gene Littler had to sink a hole-in-one to win it. I didn't play a loose shot. Maybe it was for the best. If I had won there, I might not be as keen here.

"This is the PGA, a major. I would really like to win it."

The 6-foot-3 Weiskopf, who only a week earlier had beaten Jack Nicklaus in a playoff for the Canadian Open, is one of the strong advance favorites in the field of 138 touring and teaching pros who tee off in their family event today over the long and tough Firestone course, scene of two previous PGAs as well as the American Golf Classic and World Series. It is a 7,180-yard test of brute strength playing to a par 70.

"There is nothing subtle about this course," Weiskopf said. "It is blast, blast, blast. You just get out there and slug. That's the reason I think you can limit the real contenders to a handful.

"Nicklaus, of course. Lee Trevino because he drives so straight. Johnny Miller, streaky but tremendous. Arnold Palmer, still as good a driver as there is in golf. And Hale Irwin, with those good long irons and playing very confidently."

And, it goes without saying— Tom Weiskopf.

Many students of the game regard Weiskopf as the finest striker of the ball on the tour, a player of tremendous natural ability whose success has been slowed by a trigger temper and flashes of immature petulance.

It is a fault that Long Tom doesn't disavow. He admits he is highly emotional but contends he is learning to harness his outbursts. He believes he can play golf as well as anybody. Most people agree.

Rufus Mayes ready to take on Stanfill

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP)— Keeping the Miami Dolphins' defense at bay boils down to a one-man war. For Rufus Mayes of the Cincinnati Bengals, the assignment is akin to capping a whirlwind.

The former Ohio State All-American offensive tackle renews his longtime rivalry with Miami's All-Pro defensive end Bill Stanfill Saturday.

"He's smart and tough, just so damned cagey," said Mayes Wednesday as the Bengals geared for their second National Football League exhibition game.

Mayes, a No. 1 draft choice of the Chicago Bears in 1969, remembers one year when Stanfill spent all day in the Bengals backfield.

"He kept catching our backs from behind just because he's so smart. I think he knew our calls, I think he knew what we were going to do," said Mayes, a 6-foot-5, 260-pounder who has been a starter for Cincinnati since his arrival in 1970.

"I think he knew it just from watching films," said Mayes. "And he's quick enough to recover if he makes a mistake."

Mayes met Stanfill during the 1969 All-Star game in Chicago. It was a case of first impressions being deceptive.

"Off the field he's real slow, an easy-going guy. He's slow moving," said Mayes.

But Stanfill doesn't lull anyone to sleep anymore.

"For 100 grand a year, I'll talk real slow too. But seriously, Stanfill moves real well...it's hard to find a weakness," said Mayes.

And for the record, Mayes rates Stanfill among the four best he's ever faced.

The others are Pittsburgh's Dwight White, Cedrick Hardman of San Francisco, and Elvin Bethea of Houston.

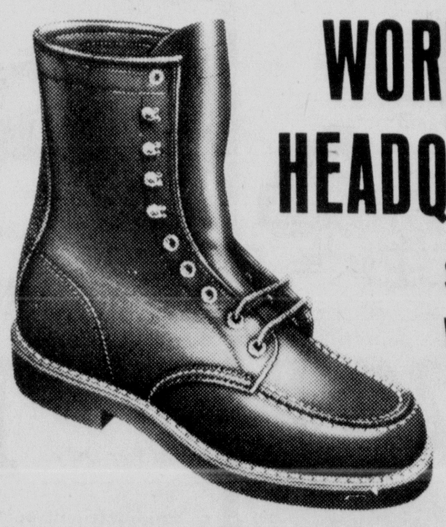

"Physically, I'm in the best shape I've ever been in," he said. "And mentally, it's really no problem. It's just a matter of getting my timing down and playing a few more games."

PARACHUTISTS ARE ALSO A RESPONSIBILITY

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — As a result of the drowning of 16 parachutists in Lake Erie in 1967, the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court in Cincinnati has ruled that the responsibility of air traffic controllers extends to parachutists as well as to airplanes and their passengers. So says the Research Group Inc. here, a legal research service for attorneys.

Shark reports continue to rise

By DUDLEY LEHEW
Associated Press Writer

Swimmers and surfers apparently have survived "Jaws" and again are looking for fun instead of fins, although a few are keeping their eyes open wider than usual.

"Shark business is now old hat," said George Whitehead of the Cabrillo Beach, Calif., lifeguard station. "We are being constantly asked about sharks, but it seems to be curiosity rather than fear."

Whitehead said that after the release of "Jaws," a film about a great white shark terrorizing — and eating — swimmers, the number of bathers dropped, but trips to the beach now appears average.

"When it gets hot, that's what people always do. Although this year maybe they are looking over their shoulders a little," said Dennis McCarbery, a spokesman for the Los Angeles County department of Parks and Recreation.

The result apparently has been an increase in shark reports, but not necessarily sharks.

Dr. David Baldridge, a researcher at Mote Marine Laboratory in Sarasota, Fla., says "there is absolutely no evidence to support any abnormal increase in Florida shark populations.

"Although a number of minor attacks and large-sized catches are being reported, that would have remained virtually unknown several years ago."

"Jaws" author Peter Benchley agrees. He said from his Stonington, Conn., cottage Tuesday, "Suddenly they're seeing things that have been there forever. They are very shark conscious. There's been no change in the shark population.

"I think it's unreasonable for people to react hysterically and say they are never going to go swimming again. The animals have always been there.

"The incidents, eating people, attacking boats, have all happened. The only thing that is fictional is that the animal would hang around a beach like that for a matter of weeks."

Ed Joyce, director of the division of marine resources for the Florida Department of Natural Resources, says a chance of shark attack is "considerably less than the chance of being struck by lightning."

Janice Ransom, a Miami Beach swimmer, said that after reading a lot about the mechanical shark used to film "Jaws," she is not scared.

"I still swim as far out as I used to," she said.

Not so for Jeffrey Hanrahan, 20, who gave up surfing at Daytona Beach, Fla., "after I was bumped by one shark." He claims officials have kept comments on sharks low-keyed so tourism won't be hurt.

A sighting of shark fins was enough to close Southampton, N.Y., beaches for the first time in 10 years.

Southampton authorities promptly closed several swimming areas for about 45 minutes and then declared the water safe again. Scores of swimmers, however, made an "orderly" rush to shore when the alarm was sounded, officials said.

Two persons injured in rural auto crash

Two persons were injured in an accident which severely damaged a Fayette County man's auto, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported today. Washington C.H. police officers are investigating a hit-skip mishap.

A car driven by Larry B. Ging, 21, Rowe-Ging Road, failed to negotiate a left curve while traveling east on U.S. 35-NW, eight-tenths of a mile west of the I-71 intersection at 2:30 a.m. Wednesday and traveled off the right side of the road 450 feet in the ditch, drove 90 feet diagonally back across the road and 90 feet in the opposite ditch where he struck a fence and fence post, traveled 30 feet into a field and overturned on its top. Ging claimed injury from the wreck and his passenger, Danny D. McDonald, 23, Jeffersonville, showed visible signs of injury at the accident scene. Neither driver was treated, according to officials at Fayette Memorial Hospital. Ging was cited by sheriff's deputies for traveling left of center.

A car driven by Robert A. Chaney, 17, Rt. 4, was moderately damaged when struck by a truck owned by W.C. Fogaly, Miami Town, on Court Street near the Main Street intersection at 10:07 a.m. Wednesday. Police reported the truck owned by Fogaly left the scene and they are continuing investigation.

Wholesale price hikes announced

Economists discount inflation resurgence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported today that higher costs for food and fuel triggered the second-sharpest jump of the year in wholesale prices during July, offering fresh evidence of a resurgence of inflation.

The Labor Department said its Wholesale Price Index climbed 1.2 per cent, reversing a decline of one-tenth of 1 per cent in June. The rise was the largest since April's 1.5 per cent and was only the third monthly increase of the year.

The increase, which had been expected by administration economists, works out to an annual rate of 14.4 per cent. Combined with June's increase in consumer prices at an annual rate of 9.6 per cent, the latest report indicated that inflation is regaining strength. Consumer prices had subsided to an average annual increase of 5.2 per cent during the three previous months.

Wholesale price increases, of course, usually mean higher prices for consumers —and the latest report did not include several factors already in place which will push up prices.

Administration economists, however, contend the current surge is temporary and will give way within a few months.

The wholesale index includes prices from all levels of the economy, including industrial raw materials and other items several steps removed from consumers. The Labor Department said wholesale prices of just those products headed for the retail level were up 1.4 per cent, the biggest increase since November.

The Labor Department said food and farm products accounted for three-fourths of the jump in the over-all index. That category rose 4.6 per cent on the strength of higher prices for vegetables, grain, fats and oils, sugar and sweets and all basic protein—meat, poultry and fish.

Industrial commodities advanced four-tenths of 1 per cent due to higher prices for fuels and related products and power.

The latest advance left the index 8.7 per cent ahead of where it was a year ago. This was the smallest 12-month advance since the 8.2 per cent figure recorded in February 1973.

FARMERS MARKETING THEIR WARES — A rather unique experience took place in the Hidy Foods parking lot, on Columbus Avenue, Wednesday evening. Area farmers were invited to sell their produce to customers at any price. Many farmers showed up early and immediately sold out of their produce. One of the last remaining was Henry Thackett, of U.S. 62-S, who is pictured showing some customers corn. Beecher and Helen Ingram, of the Dogtown community, another farming couple who participated, expressed the opinion that they would like to see the farmer's market become a weekly event.

Jury acquits Gurney in slush fund case

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Confident that he's finally "out of the clutches of the Justice Department," former Sen. Edward J. Gurney says he will try to regain his health before deciding whether to attempt a political comeback.

"The government had its shot. They never had a case to begin with," the elated 61-year-old Republican said Wednesday after a jury cleared him of five charges in a $233,000 slush fund scandal and left two other counts unresolved.

After 56 hours of deliberation over 10 days, the six-man, six-woman jury found Gurney innocent of bribery, accepting unlawful compensation and three counts of lying to a federal grand jury.

The panel, which heard testimony from 105 witnesses in the 24-week-long trial, said it was deadlocked on a conspiracy charge and one other perjury charge against Gurney.

Co-defendants Ralph Koontz,51, and K. Wayne Swiger, 61, both suspended Federal Housing Administration officials from Florida, were found innocent of the conspiracy charge. The panel said it couldn't agree on a conspiracy count against ex-Gurney aide Joseph Bastien, 33, but acquitted him on a charge of accepting unlawful compensation.

The case centered around an alleged scheme to sell Gurney's influence to Florida builders in return for FHA favors.

Jury foreman James Baker said jurors voted 7 to 5 to acquit Gurney on the conspiracy count, 9 to 3 to find him guilty on the fourth count of perjury and 9 to 3 to convict Bastien on conspiracy. U.S. District Court Judge Ben Krentzman ruled a mistrial on the three counts.

After rendering their verdict, jurors criticized the government for presenting a weak case — "The proof just wasn't there," said one.

The five prosecutors refused comment on whether they planned to try the case again.

But Gurney, the first incumbent senator to be indicted in 50 years, said, "If they couldn't prove this case after two years and plea bargaining by every key witness, they're never going to prove it. Thank God for the jury system that got me out of the clutches of the Justice Department."

Gurney was at the pinnacle of his 20-year political career when the indictment was handed down a year ago,

Council race draws six candidates

By GEORGE MALEK

The deadline for filing for the November general election has passed, and 62 Fayette County residents will be competing for 48 elective offices. In addition, six New Holland residents will be seeking four offices in that village.

The November 4 election will include contests for Washington C.H. City Council, the Washington C.H. Board of Education, the Fayette County Board of Education, Washington C.H. Municipal Court judge, various offices in five villages, and a trustee and clerk in each of the county's 10 townships.

Six candidates have filed petitions to have their names on the November ballot for the City Council contest. They are William F. Stolzenburg Sr., 804 Maple St.; William F. Stolzenburg Jr., 1104 Rawlings St.; Roy C. (Dick) Underwood Jr., 429 Fifth St.; John F. Morris, 793 McLean St.; James F. Ward, 549 Damon Drive; and Joseph O'Brien, 120 Gardner Court. Three will be elected. and O'Brien is the only incumbent.

Three persons will compete for two seats on the Fayette County Board of Education. They are Susan Rockhold, 7852 Greenfield-Sabina Road; Philip Grover, 2906 Parrott-Station Road; and Marvin DeMent, 17015 Ohio 41-N. DeMent is an incumbent.

The Washington C.H. Board of Education will offer no contest as only three candidates filed for the three seats which will become vacant. Walter E. (Gene) Bienz, 414 Van Deman St., and Robert Highfield, 419 Van Deman St., will again serve as board members. The new addition will be Hugh M. Rea, 132 E. Paint St., former elementary coordinator in the Washington C.H. School District.

John P. Case, 330 Jupiter St., and Robert L. Simpson, 825 Lincoln Drive, will offer area residents a choice of Municipal Court judges for the first time in a great many years. Reed M. Winegardner, the incumbent judge, is retiring.

JEFFERSONVILLE

Gordon McCarty will become the mayor of Jeffersonville. He is running unopposed for the post.

Also unopposed are Harlan Hoppes and Nelson C. Baker who are the only candidates for the board of public affairs. There are two seats open.

Three candidates, however, will battle for two seats on the village council. They are Harold L. Mountcastle, Marguerite Flax and Marvin Brown.

No one filed for the position of clerk which was also open.

BLOOMINGBURG

Max Grim, unopposed for mayor, will retain his present post, but a heated contest has emerged for two council seats. Four candidates have filed for the village council, Irene Grim, Patti L. Jenkins, Charles Hunt and William Bennett.

Robert E. Grim and Judith Ward will face each other for the clerk-treasurer's office. Grim is the incumbent.

There will be no contest for the board of public affairs because two seats are

CARLISLE, Iowa (AP) — Police Chief Don Porter began receiving food stamps this week. He has not been paid since July 1 when the city council refused to set his salary.

"I have to make sure my family has something to eat," Porter said. "I never thought I'd have to stoop so low."

The council in this Des Moines suburb of 2,250 reduced Porter's salary from $9,000 a year to $2.25 an hour in early June, claiming he was incompetent, insubordinate and did not follow regular procedures.

"That's the same salary they would pay a person to sweep the streets or fill holes in the streets — part time help," Porter says. "They figured that if they drop my salary to $2.25 an hour, I would quit."

Porter didn't quit, so the council fired him. But under Iowa law, a mayor has the sole right to hire a police chief, so Mayor Larry Anderson reappointed Porter five days later.

So the council, which sets salaries for all city employes, has refused to set a salary for the chief.

"All I receive on payday is a letter from the city clerk stating she is not authorized to issue me a check," Porter says.

This week, he applied for the food stamps.

"I called up and wanted to know if I was qualified," Porter said. "The lady said if I wasn't qualified now, I never would be."

Porter, whose children are 10, 8, and 6, said his family has survived because his wife works for a printing company in Des Moines.

"The check that she brings in takes care of outstanding bills, but it doesn't leave enough to eat," Porter says. "We've still got a little savings account left that isn't completely used up. I can last for quite a while."

Porter says one councilman said he was not qualified for his job because "he puts in too much time and he spends too much money.

"If that makes you not qualified because you are doing your job, there's something wrong someplace," Porter said.

Arnold makes pig of himself; will be crashing big boar

Bethel Mason, Arnold's owner, served a cake with one candle and the 600-pound pig ate all of it Wednesday. "He would have liked to eat the candle, too," Mason said.

No wonder. People buy him candy, soft drinks, pies and cakes. And when he isn't eating, he sleeps in the breeze from an electric fan.

"He has been known to drink a beer, too," Mason said. "He's been eating pretty good."

Mason, watching Arnold finish off two gallons of milk, said on the average day the pig eats "10 to 15 pounds of hog feed or corn meal."

But Arnold's birthday appetite appeared to have no bounds.

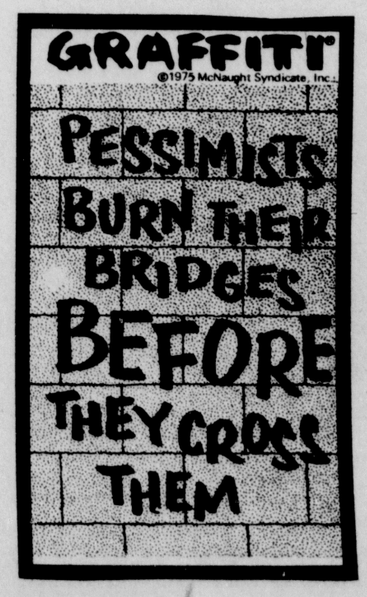

He gobbled up an apple pie, washed it down with chocolate soda — his favorite soft drink — then turned to desert. It was a nickel gum ball, nuzzled out of Mason's vending machine.

The pig then flopped down in the station's doorway.

If its hot, Arnold spends most of the day in a nearby waterhole. But he always spends his nights on the pavement in front of the service station.

Arnold was part of a litter of pigs owned by Mason, and he began staying around the station in the winter because it was heated. He quickly became a pet.

"Everybody who comes along wants to know when we'll kill him," Mason said. "But I reckon we'll let him stay around here as long as he wants to."

Hoffa's foster son questioned

DETROIT (AP) — Jimmy Hoffa's son says he believes Charles "Chuckie" O'Brien, Hoffa's foster son, knows what happened to the ex-Teamsters union president. He demands that O'Brien take a lie detector test.

O'Brien, the 41-year-old union organizer raised by Hoffa from the age of 3, said he had no knowledge of Hoffa's whereabouts. He talked with James P. Hoffa, Hoffa's son, who demanded O'Brien take a polygraph examination.

"He hemmed and he hawed and he said he would have to consult his attorney," said James P. Hoffa. "I construed that to be a refusal."

O'Brien emerged Wednesday from several days of seclusion and was interviewed by the FBI for 3½ hours. He is expected to be questioned again as the FBI continues its probe into the disappearance of Hoffa last Wednesday.

"I think he has knowledge of what happened," James P. Hoffa told The Associated Press Wednesday night." Hoffa, a Detroit attorney, said O'Brien's FBI interview generated "some interesting leads.

"Some are being checked out. Some are very, very interesting."

O'Brien would not comment. James Burdick, O'Brien's attorney, told The AP that O'Brien was not involved in Hoffa's disappearance.

Hoffa called home last Wednesday to say Detroit Mafia figure Anthony Giacalone hadn't shown up for a luncheon date. The 62-year-old former labor leader hasn't been heard from since. Giacalone denies he had planned to meet Hoffa, a longtime friend.

O'Brien provided corroboration of Giacalone's story that he was at a Southfield athletic club at the time of the luncheon meeting.

Friends say Hoffa said the meeting also was to include former Teamsters vice president Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano and a Detroit labor figure, Leonard Schultz. Both denied the appointment.

James P. Hoffa said he thinks O'Brien knows Hoffa's fate because "of his associations and his activities of the past week." Sources said O'Brien was in Detroit last weekend, then in the Memphis area.

The Hoffa family has received no ransom demands, but believes Hoffa was kidnaped. The FBI said it is operating under the assumption he still is alive.

Hoffa's attorney, Leonard Boudin of New York, said he thinks Hoffa was kidnaped by opponents who feared he would win a key court case, opening the way for a challenge of current Teamsters leaders.

It was speculated immediately after it was learned Hoffa was missing that his opponents decided to get rid of him so he could not run against incumbent Frank E. Fitzsimmons for the Teamsters general presidency.

Skies finally began clearing across Ohio overnight as cool and drier air moved across the area.

Temperatures fell into the 50s and low 60s and at sunrise the cool spot was Youngstown with 51 degrees, just one degree above the record for the date. The low of 49 in Erie, Pa. set a new low for this date.

A high pressure system over lower Michigan is responsible for the improved weather, and is forecast to continue eastward, reaching New England Friday.

Following the high is a slow warming trend that will carry into the weekend.

Sunny skies were expected for this afternoon with temperatures in the 70s. Further warming to the low 80s is scheduled for Friday afternoon, with temperatures reaching the mid 80s by Saturday with continuing fair skies.

Fair and warm Saturday and Sunday. A chance of showers Monday. Highs in the mid to upper 80s. Lows in the 60s.

State senate eyes energy bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State senators convene today with the House in recess to try to complete their version of a major new state energy bill.

A subcommittee of the Senate Energy and Environment Committee has the bill almost ready for a vote, but changes it made in an earlier compromise involving the House would require further proceedings in the lower chamber.

The office of Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, said it was unlikely that chamber will reconvene before Monday.

Both chambers began their late summer break last Friday night after the House, by a vote of 82-1, approved its version of a compromise worked out with the office of GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Senators refused to act on the major legislation right away, saying they wanted more time to study it.

Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, scheduled today's floor session, but in the interim, the subcommittee met to take under consideration a broad range of energy proposals that have been languishing in the two houses all year.

What emerged Wednesday was a new bill—similar in many ways to the one that passed the House—but also one that incorporates some key provisions involving the emergency powers of the governor and those of an envisioned Energy Resources and Development Agency (ERDA).

Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, chairman of the subcommittee, said the panel's actions speeded the chance of a Senate-House agreement by "refining some things that the House, in its haste, didn't catch." He added that "all they have to do now is concur."

One major change was an amendment that divides the powers of the Energy Emergency Commission between ERDA and the governor. The commission, an ad hoc group slated to go out of existence Jan. 1 anyway, would surrender to the governor its authority to declare an "energy emergency." At the same time, its power to allocate fuel and order other conservation measures would be absorbed by the new agency.

ERDA presumably would cooperate with Rhodes, since the House and Senate versions both give him the authority to name its five voting members. Both also provide that four legislators—two Republicans and two Democrats—would serve as ex officio members who would "fully participate but not vote," Meshel said.

Both houses also have approved major provisions aimed at attracting a new $400 million Coalcon demonstration plant to southeast Ohio where it would seek to develop methods for gasification of coal, among other technological advances. The plan calls for favorable tax treatment to make Ohio more attractive than other states competing for the facility.

The subcommittee, in another amendment, voted Wednesday to exempt the new energy agency from the jurisdiction of the Power Siting Commission. Otherwise, the commission would have the prerogative to rule on the sites of new energy facilities, it was explained.

Sen. Robert E. O'Shaughnessy, D-15 Columbus, who heads the full energy and environment committee, said another change in the bill is the earmarking of a $5 million energy appropriations which was included but not specifically earmarked in the newly approved capital improvements bill.

Under that amendment, $1 million would be set aside for operating ERDA during the next two years, while the remaining $4 million would be available for energy related program development, he said.

Stock list posts gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged upward today despite the news that wholesale prices climbed at a 14.4 per cent annual rate last month.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead a fraction, and gainers took a 3-2 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

The government announced as the market opened that its wholesale price index had risen 1.2 per cent during July, with food items accounting for about three-fourths of the increase.

But analysts noted that Wall Street had been bracing for that kind of news in the July index for about two weeks.

And some investors seemed to be doing some cautious buying in the hope that the market had absorbed the impact of the news in advance with its sharp declines of late.

Japanese Reds free hostages

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Five terrorists freed 15 hostages today from an airliner at Kuala Lumpur airport. The Red Army terrorists were joined by five other radicals released from Japanese prisons and four substitute hostages before the plane took off for Libya.

Among the 15 hostages were U.S. Consul Robert Stebbins of Clovis, N.M., and a Swedish diplomat. They were released in exchange for the four substitute hostages who boarded the plane with the terrorists.

Officials said the Japan Air Lines DC8 would make a refueling stop in Colombo, Sri Lanka, and then fly straight to Tripoli, where it was expected at about 10:45 p.m. Tripoli time (4:45 p.m. EDT). The flight would cover 6,900 miles.

Earlier reports said the plane would refuel at Aden.

Officials said the Colombo government warned it would shoot anyone who tried to get off the plane during the refueling stop.

The four susbstitute hostages were Ramli Omar, Malaysian parliamentary secretary to the Communications Ministry; Osman Kassim, secretary general of the Malaysian Home Ministry; and two senior Japanese Foreign Ministry officials — Ryohei Murata and Ochi Keisuke.

The 15 hostages were the last to be freed of a total of 52 persons seized in the drama that began Monday when the terrorists invaded the U.S. Embassy building. Most of the others were released Wednesday.

The plane's take-off was delayed for a full day as the terrorists and Malaysians stumbled on new snags in the complex negotiations. These included the raiders' destination and whether they should be armed.

The terrorists had already secured their main demand — the release of five comrades imprisoned in Japanese jails. The five arrived in Kuala Lumpur on Tuesday and had spent most of their time since their arrival waiting in an airport building.

Earlier, two Malaysian explosives experts boarded the plane and came out with two hooded terrorists carrying some packets containing six homemade bombs. They drove in a car about half a mile down the runway, walked a short distance across the grass, placed the bombs in a hole and detonated them.

The explosion, which could be heard a mile away, sent smoke and debris more than 40 feet in the air.

Officials said the terrorists were allowed to keep their firearms, but the bullets were to be kept by the government officials acting as substitute hostages.

At every step of the drama, long drawn-out negotiations were required on such issues as handling of the hostages, where the terrorists would fly, whether they could take arms on the plane and the number of the plane crew.

The case involves Hoffa's appeal of a clemency order issued by President Richard M. Nixon releasing Hoffa after he served 4½ years of a 13-year sentence for mail fraud and jury tampering.

The clemency order bars Hoffa from participating in union politics until 1980. Hoffa was unsuccessful in fighting the restriction in U.S. District Court, and the case is pending at the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Hoffa has argued that Nixon was not acting within his powers by restricting a clemency order.

Gurney trial

forcing him out of a 1974 bid for re-election.

Asked if he would run for office again, Gurney said, "That's an option.... I'm going to take a little vacation to recover my health a little better. I'll think about my future after that."

William Taylor, state GOP chairman, said he wants to persuade Gurney to run for the Senate in 1976 against Democrat Lawton Chiles.

"I think it's a great day for the Republican party," said Taylor. "We will encourage him to get back in there and present himself to the people."

The jury had reported Monday that it had reached all the verdicts it could and was hopelessly deadlocked on unspecified counts. Krentzman had the returned verdicts sealed and ordered the panel to try again to reach a unanimous decision on all counts.

Wednesday afternoon, jurors said they tried and failed despite 10 more hours rehashing the 86 days of testimony and weighing more than 500 pieces of evidence.

Portuguese moderates attack Reds

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portuguese Communists opened fire today on a mob attacking their headquarters in the northern town of Fafe, killing one person and wounding five, officials said.

Fafe, about 200 miles north of Lisbon, was the scene of antiCommunist violence earlier this week.

Other anti-Communist rioting was reported in Bombarral, 40 miles from Lisbon. Rioters tore apart the offices of the Communist party and the Socialist Leftist party, a small, militant group.

The riots marked the fifth straight day of anti-Communist violence in the conservative north. Military men and civilians expressed fear that the backlash would soon hit the capital, possibly setting off civil war.

In the industrial northern city of Porto, a scheduled Communist rally mustered only a few thousand supporters. The 140 marines who were rushed Wednesday to bolster local troops were not called out.

Meanwhile, the Lisbon newspaper O Secolo quoted Communist-backed Premier Vasco Goncalves saying: "We have a government."

The paper said Goncalves is expected to name the new cabinet soon and end a crisis precipitated last month when Socialists and Popular Democrats quit the government to protest its swing toward the radical left.

Goncalves met late into the evening with President Francisco da Costa Gomes and leading members of the ruling Armed Forces Movement.

Three have chance for KSU dismissal

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Ten enlisted men and one lowranking Ohio National Guard officer had the only chances today of being dismissed immediately as defendants in the $46 million damages trial stemming from the 1970 Kent State University shootings.

U.S. District Court Judge Don J. Young denied defense motions Wednesday to dismiss claims against Gov. James A. Rhodes, former Kent State President Robert I. White, ex-Adj. Gen. Sylvester T. Del Corso and former Asst. Adj. Gen. Robert H. Canterbury.

Young said the evidence in each case, except for the 11, might persuade reasonable minds that the defendants should be held liable in the shootings and that the jury should decide.

The rulings came as the shooting victims rested their case after 40 days of testimony from 76 witnesses.

The defense was to begin its case today by calling Kent police and firemen to testify about rioting downtown and the burning of the campus Reserve Officers Training Corps building the weekend before the shooting.

The 11 former guardsmen Young left under consideration for dismissal were the only defendants not called to the witness stand. Victims' attorneys said they would consider overnight whether to drop their claims against the 11.

The victims rested their case after their final witness, former Scranton Commission member James F. Ahern told the jury the shootings were unnecessary.

The former New Haven, Conn., police chief said law enforcement officers act as referees to protect citizens' right to demonstrate peacefully as well as guard the lives and property of others. He said guardsmen never should have attempted to disperse the apparently peaceful campus antiwar rally that preceded the shooting.

He also said it appeared guardsmen should not have turned and fired on protestors but were "home free" headed toward their own lines after being harassed during the dispersal maneuver.

The gunfire erupted as guardsmen attempted to break up the rally May 4, 1970, leaving four students dead and nine wounded.

The victims and their familes seek the judgment from 41 present or former state officials and guardsmen. The troops were ordered to Kent during a weekend of rioting in protest of U.S. military activity in Southeast Asia.

State fairgrounds readied for opening

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State Fair employes, backed by a small army of temporary help, are putting the fairgrounds in shape for the fair opening, less than three weeks away.

Fair officials said activity is at a quick pace in anticiption of what they call the world's largest fair. Most of the buildings have received a fresh coat of paint; livestock pens are being prepared and hundreds of yards of fencing are being spruced up.

The steel poles supporting the sky gliders have been bolted into place. The glider's three-passenger gondolas will handle nearly 2,000 passengers an hour when the 12-day fair opens Aug. 21.

And this year's fair will not only be cleaner, but greener, fair officials said.

Numerous flowers have been planted to complete the beautification program and new grass can be seen throughout the fairgrounds.

Included in the mail are hundreds of entries by hopeful exhibitors. On opening day, some 63,000 exhibits will be displayed by 10,000 exhibitors.

A parttime force joins three regular crews during the spring and summer to put final touches on the grounds. Housewives, students, school teachers and retired businessmen become fair employes. Others take two-week vacations to work at the fair.

They fill positions such as clerks, typists, ticket sellers, ticket takers, painters, ground keepers, electricians, parking lot attendants, shuttlebus drivers and conductors and grandstand and coliseum ushers.

Ohio 4-H members are conducting an advance ticket sale through Aug. 15, with 25 cents of each $1.50 ticket going to the local club and another 10 cents to the 4-H Foundation Endowment Fund.

Sales pitch under fire

VICTORIA, B.C. (AP) — The provincial Consumer Services Department Wednesday issued a warning not to get involved in a business plan being offered in British Columbia by an American company convicted of theft last January.

A news release from the department said Firestone Photographs Inc. of Columbus, Ohio, has been advertising the sale of franchises in British Columbia for the distribution of Kodak films and other photo products.

Advertisements in B.C. newspapers state a $5,495 investment is required, and in return, Firestone Photographs agrees to supply firlm and display racks, a map of the sales territory and to arrange for space in retail outlets for the distribution, the release says.

The department's warning says the firm was prosecuted for theft by deception in Franklin County, Ohio, and fined $10,000. It was also ordered to refund more than $30,000 to distributors who claimed they were deceived.

Firestone Photographs is "neither registered as a B.C. company nor as an extra-provincial company," the release said.

State jobless claims jump for week

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — First-time unemployment compensation claims to the state were almost three times the number at the beginning of this month as the same period last year, the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services said today.

For the week ending Aug. 2, 31,771 persons made initial application for insurance, up 8,427 from the previous week.

In August 1974, 62,503 persons received continuing unemployment.

In the state's eight largest counties, initial unemployment claims rose by almost 6,000 to 15,935 from the previous week with almost a 2,000 person increase each in Cuyahoga, Franklin and Montgomery counties.

Initial and continuing claims under the extended state and federal unemployment compensation program also advanced. Benefits to first-time applicants rose from 5,862 on July 26 to 6,170 on Aug. 2 and continuing claims rose by 4,000 recipients to 48,340 for the week ending Aug. 2.

California ends freeway work

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California, king of the freeway builders, is putting away its road plans and looking for ways to keep its highway-building machine from going broke.

Faced with mounting costs and declining revenue, state officials have frozen new highway construction. They say they will eliminate 3,300 transportation jobs over the next 11 months.

The cutbacks will slice the state's $985 million highway budget by 25 pecent and halt three decades of freeway building.

Co-ops provide more farm cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new analysis by the Agriculture Department shows that federal land bank associations owned cooperatively by borrowers are providing a larger share of financing for purchases of farm real estate.

In 1969 only 13 per cent of the farm real estate lending was by the federal land banks while life insurance companies provided 19 per cent of the mortgage capital. Last year land banks accounted for 33 per cent and insurance companies 7 per cent.

Traditionally, the largest portion of farm real estate financing has been handled by the sellers themselves, including 49 per cent of the mortgage money in 1969 and 43 per cent last year.

Bellbrook to rebuild council

BELLBROOK, Ohio (AP) — The only Bellbrook councilman not removed from office in a recall election July 26 will interview applicants for one of the six vacant seats under a court ruling handed down Wednesday.

Councilman Robert Yeager, who voted against council levying a proposed one-half per cent income tax after it had been turned down by voters, was ordered to select a second councilman.

Visiting Clinton County Common Pleas Court Judge Paul Riley ruled that Yeager and the new councilman then select a third. The three will then appoint a fourth, filling all the terms that expire Dec. 31.

Sitting in Greene County Common Pleas Court, Riley said the four could then name a mayor and a vice mayor. Police Chief Richard Frederick's position as acting city manager would then expire.

The ousted council left the daily operations of goverment up to Frederick in its final meeting. It attempted to name Yeager mayor, but he refused.

The seats of Yeager and the three councilmen yet to be named will be up at the November election under Riley's ruling. A special election will be held the same month to fill the two other seats.

The mayor and vice mayor are selected from the council. The recall ousted both Mayor Charles K. Billings and Deputy Mayor Lawrence Corbett from office.

Inflation fears mounting again

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Busiess Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Judging by the reaction, that shocking jump in the consumer goods inflation rate to 9.6 per cent in June isn't being treated as a mere fluke. Fears are mounting.

Continued price increases could cause other serious economic disruptions, the most serious of them being to undermine chances of a recovery. Almost certainly they would produce political consequences.

Even members of the Ford administration concede that its policies might add to the inflation problem, which was considered all but licked just a few short weeks ago.

Albert Rees, director of the Council on Wage-Price Stability fears that Soviet grain purchases and a decontrol of oil prices could be contributants to inflation. But these, he said, aren't the only concerns.

Testifying before the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, he said that prices of finished industrial products haven't declined, as they had been expected to, "and they are beginning to rise very early in the recovery."

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, fears that a continuation of rising prices could actually plunge the economy into a deeper recession in the near future.

Meeting in Chicago this week, the executive council of the labor federation said a tight money policy by the Federal Reserve, grain sales to the Soviet Union and the Ford administration's oil pricing policy constituted economic threats.

Arthur F. Burns, the Federal Reserve Board chairman, told the Joint Economic Committee that he too is worried that sales of U.S. grain to the Soviets will force up food prices.

As if to underscore these fears, General Mills and International Multifoods said Wednesday they were increasing flour prices to supermarkets by 1.6 cents a pound, or about 10 per cent.

While there is some economic justification for higher grain prices, mainly because of the increased demand, some economists are puzzled over the persistence of high prices for manufactured goods in the absence of demand.

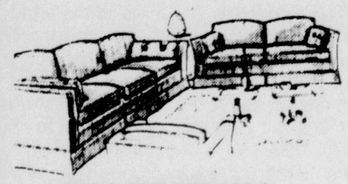

Why, they ask, should prices remain high when the nation's manufacturing capacity is being utilized at a rate of less than 70 per cent and the likelihood of continued slack even if a robust economic recovery develops?

Economists of the First National City Bank are speculating on the possibility that. Jawboning against price increases is likely to become more commonplace, the First City economists feel. And antitrust action is a distinct possibility, they say.

"Out and About" with Mark Thellmann

Dear Readers,

I have something this week I want to share with you. Most of you have probably heard of "yellow journalism," (which despite popular belief has nothing to do with paper training your dog) which flourished some 50 years ago. Anyway, a friend of mine from New Jersey, who is a professional writer, specializes in what he calls "scarlet journalism," which takes the imagination one step further. His name is Luther Conant III and while he was in Washington C. H. visiting me months ago he stole a copy of the Record-Herald and re-wrote one of my police beat stories, undoubtedly to intimidate me, but this is the way he interpreted a hit-skip accident I had covered:

"At 11:45 p.m. Wednesday, a car owned by Sharon Storm of 221 Willard St., was struck by an unidentified driver in Frisch's parking lot on Clinton Ave."

Mark, what a high time those long gone newsmen would have had with that! Let it pass in one middlin' little paragraph? Not on your life! It would've read more like this: "It was rapidly nearing 11:30 p.m. Saturday night when comely Sharon Storm pulled into the parking lot at Frisch's on Clinton Avenue. The long-haired blond pulled her thin coat even more tightly around her as she stepped from her car into the freezing rain that gusted around her. She entered the restaurant quickly, never realizing the fate that providence held in store for her.

Fifteen rain-drenched minutes passed. Suddenly, from out of the wind-swept darkness another car appeared. It roared down Clinton Avenue like a marauding demon! The driver's red-rimmed eyes took in the flashing Frisch's sign, but his gin-soaked brain totally failed to comprehend.

His tires screeched on the slick pavement as his car swerved into the Frisch's lot. Too late his numbered mind took in the details of Sharon's car before him. His foot twitched spastically, hunting for the brake peddle, obscured by alcohol. Too late he found his mark and with a splintering crash, ripped into the side of the young innocent's car.

Blind panic seized the inebriate as his fearful position closed in on him. In seconds, the restaurant customers would be upon him, summoned by the deafening crash. The haze cleared from his mind as ounces of adrenaline surged through his blood.

Quickly he threw the big car into reverse and stepped on the gas. The vehicle vanished into the night as Sharon Storm stepped from Frisch's door to confront her crumpled car. A single tear crept slowly down the young girl's cheek, finally mingling with the rain.

Somewhere, speeding ever farther in the distance, a frightened man stepped harder on the gas!"

The only reason we aren't hiring Luther as our new police beat reporter is that police beat would be the only thing in the whole newspaper if he took the liberty to stretch each incident as the one above; yet his rendition remains a very authentic interpretation of what once was. I'm not so sure we didn't lose something when yellow journalism turned white and went straight. Ah well, that was my side-light for this week and now it's down to business. . .

I am proud to announce the winner of last week's Photo of the Week Contest and it is Greg Bailey of 317 Worley St., for his brilliant caption, "Yuk! You mean I have to kiss Mark Thellmann?" Second place goes to Mary Whiting of 1046 Genevieve Dr., for her caption, "Did you say I was too late for the Miss Ohio contest?" Good work readers!

"Yuk! You mean I have to kiss Mark Thellmann?" by Greg Bailey

Now pay special attention to this weeks contest pic and be sure to note all the details in the photo. They may help you come up with a witty caption. Even if they don't, it'll be more relative. Get those captions to me by 3 p.m. Tuesday and remember the prizes are two free tickets to the Ohio Theater in Columbus to see a swell flick!

Love,
Mark

Fender and Tillis to perform at Hara

EDITOR'S NOTE:
..The people running Dayton Hara Arena have been outdoing themselves this summer to please concert goers. Early in the summer, The Electric Light Orchestra; Earth, Wind and Fire; The Eagles and Roberta Flack have appeared. Yet to come is a country and western concert featuring Mel Tillis, Freddie Fender and Rosie Hart (Aug. 10); Graham Central Station and B.T. Express (Aug. 14); Jefferson Starship (Aug. 15); the Beach Boys (Aug. 21); Helen Reddy (Aug. 23); and tentatively War (Aug. 30). Since Hara Arena feels it has catered more to rock fans and neglected country and western patrons, the Tillis-Fender-Hart concert on Sunday evening, Aug. 10, is promised to balance the scales once again. The show will begin at 7:30 p.m. and general admission tickets are reasonably priced at $5 (advance) and $6 day of the show. Write: Hara Arena, 1001 Shiloh Springs Rd., Dayton, Ohio - 45415 or call 278-4778. Below are biographical sketches of both Tillis and Fender.

FREDDY FENDER

My real name is Baldemar G. Huerta. I was born in the south Texas valley border town of San Benito. I'm a Mexican-American, better yet, a Tex-Mex. I just picked up my stage name, Freddy Fender, in the late fifties as a name that would help my music sell better with "gringos". Now I like the name.

Music was part of me, even in my early childhood. I can still remember sitting on the street corner facing Pancho Galvin's grocery store, plunking at my three-string guitar. It didn't have a back on it, but it sure sounded pretty good to me and the crowd of little kids listening. Music kept alot of us happy, even when it was hard for our Mamas to put beans on the table.

We began migrating north as farm workers when I was about ten. We worked beets in Michigan, pickles in Ohio, baled hay and picked tomatoes in Indiana. When that was over came cotton picking time in Arkansas. All we really had to look forward to was making enough money to have a good Christmas in the "valley", where somehow I'd always manage to get my mother to buy me a guitar if the old one was worn out.

When I was sixteen I dropped out of high school and joined the Marines for three years. I got to see California, Japan and Okinawa, but mainly I got my point of view from the time I spent in the brig. It seemed that I just couldn't adjust myself to such a disciplined way of life. I always liked to play the guitar in the barracks and to drink, so much so that sometimes I forget where or who I was.

The late fifties found me back in San Benito, playing beer joints, Chicano dances and starting my singing career. I even began recording some all - Spanish Chicano records and by 1958 these were doing great in Texas and Mexico.

Next I turned to some Tex-Mex rockabilly music for recordings and cut "Holy One" and my big hit "Wasted Days and Wasted Nights" in 1959. In 1960 I cut "Crazy, Crazy Baby". Everything went beautifully until May, Friday 13, 1960. I was busted for "grass" in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. I'm not bitter, but if friends ask I still say the three years I spent in Angola State prison was a long time for such a little mistake.

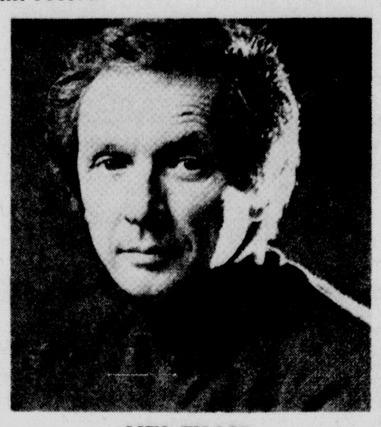

My time in prison was hard, but music made it better. I can remember when by bass player and I (we were busted together) walked into Angola, carrying our guitar and bass instead of our clothes. Then every Saturday and Sunday we would play on the "walk" for our fellow convicts. I even recorded an album of Chicano songs on a portable tape recorder at the prison.

In July, 1963 I headed home from prison on a Trailways bus, but soon came back to Louisiana, singing at "Papa Joe's" on Bourbon Street in New Orleans until 1968. It was there that I played music with such cats as Joe Berry, Joey Long, Skip Easterling and Aaron Neville.

By 1969 I was back in the "valley", playing again with a Chicano orchestra and learning new trades. I was beginning to feel that maybe I was getting too old and should go ahead and "hang up my gloves." So, I went to work as a mechanic and played music on weekends, getting $1.60 an hour and $28 a night picking so that I didn't starve to death. I took the G.E.D. test, received my high school diploma and even went to college for two years.

By 1974 I was living in Corpus Christi, Texas and a friend told me about Huey Meaux, a recording producer from Houston who had produced some big hits on B.J. Thomas, Joe Berry and my good friend Doug Sahm. He accepted my material and started recording.

It was in one of these sessions that I first cut my country and pop hit "Before The Next Teardrop Falls" on Huey's "Crazy Cajun" label. ABC-DOT Records purchased the record and signed me when it started happening on country stations in Houston. I couldn't be prouder. After twenty years of trying I've finally got my first national hit record!

MEL TILLIS

Mel Tillis is an entertainer, a consumate performer, an artist who can make people laugh and weep and sing, a man who translates experience into song. He records, writes, tours, runs a publishing company, makes appearances on television, radio and in film.

His recordings on the MGM label are always high in the national music charts — always top 10. His gift for composing has seen over 500 songs recorded, including "Detroit City," which went gold for Bobby Bare and has been cut by dozens of names in the field including Tom Jones and Dean Martin. He penned "Ruby, Don't Take Your Love To Town," which also sold a million for the rock group, Kenny Rogers and The First Edition.

His Sawgrass Muxic (publishing), licensed by BMI and with six full time writers on staff, has been a resounding success since it was formed 10 years ago and he makes over 200 concert dates each year with his traveling band, The Statesiders.

Television audiences have enjoyed Mel Tillis on major network and syndicated shows that include: Tony Orlando and Dawn, Dinah!, the Tonight Show, Mike Douglas, Merv Griffin, Dean Martin, the Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour (as a regular), Hee Haw, Love, American Style, the Ian Tyson Show in Canada, several of the Jerry Lewis Telethons and the Grand Ole Opry, to name a few.

Movie goers are enjoying Mel's dual roles as himself and as a service station attendant in the current motion picture, "W.W. & The Dixie Dance Kings," a 20th Century Fox release.

Watching Mel Tillis, listening to him sing and move and sway an audience with la de da, it's hard to comprehend that this is the same man who, as a kid in Pahokee, Florida, took a lot of razzing about his speech. "When I was three I had malaria, and as a result began stuttering. Some people said it was an emotional problem and would go away. I felt embarrassed and sensitive about it, but it didn't go away."

Tillis attended several university speech clinics until, in the late 50's, he decided the stuttering was something he could just live with.

"I had been unable to meet people, was afraid to get up in front of an audience. I even had a fear of answering the telephone. But let me tell you, it's much better to face the stuttering than to run away from it," he says. Now it's paying off as a comedy ploy for Tillis and fans have come to expect a funny story from the man who takes about twice the time to get it out. It surprises many people Tillis has no such problem when he sings.

"Singing is a kind of mechanical helper," he explains. "With the various instruments playing along, the rhythm and everything moving, my voice just seems to flow with it. Like following the bouncing rubber ball."

Although Tillis did record his smash hit, "Ruby," he didn't attempt "Detroit City." "I wrote a talking part in 'Detroit City' which was a stupid thing on my part. If I had tried to record it I'd still be in the studio!" That song, by the way, has been cut by well over 100 different singers and musical groups.

Mel has no set formula for writing. "I hear a lot of writers say that you have to be poor, to suffer, to be successful. I'm not sure that's entirely true, although I do think it helps if you've known poverty in your early life, or even yesterday. Having had it rough helps you interpret a song with a little more feeling," he says.

Timing, in Tillis' opinion, is the most important aspect of show business. "My first big break was filling in for another artist on a Duke of Paducah Show. I just happened to be there when an agent asked if I wanted to sub." Webb Pierce opened another door for Tillis when he recorded his "I'm Tired" some 18 years ago. Since then, more than two dozen major music awards have been given Tillis for his outstanding contributions in song. Other top songwriting achievements include "Memory Maker," "Sawmill" and "I Ain't Never," among others. He has written close to 1,000 songs.

One of the funniest entertainers in or out of country music, Tillis' ad lib style comes strictly from personal experiences. "I just start telling some of the things that have happened to me. I add a bit to the routines as I go along and of course, funny things seem to keep happening to and around me."

Spellbound by 'Godspell'

by Debra A. Tinker

The most unfortunate thing about the Kent Acting and Touring Company's performance of "Godspell" Monday night was so many people missed it. The play was performed at Washington Middle School with great enthusiasm and audience participation was encouraged by the cast's singing and dancing in the aisles. During one of the numbers, one member of the cast was so bold as to hug and kiss a woman seated in the front row! Also, the cast shared wine with some of the audience during the jump-up-and-get-it-on number, "Light of the World."

The musical, based upon The Gospel according to St. Matthew had a cast of nine dressed as clowns, portraying Jesus Christ and the society in which He lived. Directed by James Thornton, the play consisted primarily of dramatized parables set to music.

All the performers threw themselves into their parts, but the most impressive character was Christ, portrayed by Chip Norwod, a Kent State student who plans to pursue a career in theatrics. His convincing performance was enhanced by his graceful, agile dancing and his clear, vibrant voice. Norwood's talent was not to be denied when many members of the audience were moved to tears during the emotional crucifixion scene.

However, spirits were lifted during the finale, as the cast carried Christ down the aisle and out of the auditorium, singing "Prepare Ye the Way of the Lord," and finally "Day by Day."

Scenery was simplistic, consisting of two saw - horses, two six-foot planks and three huge sections of hurricane fencing used as a backdrop, which later served as the Cross.

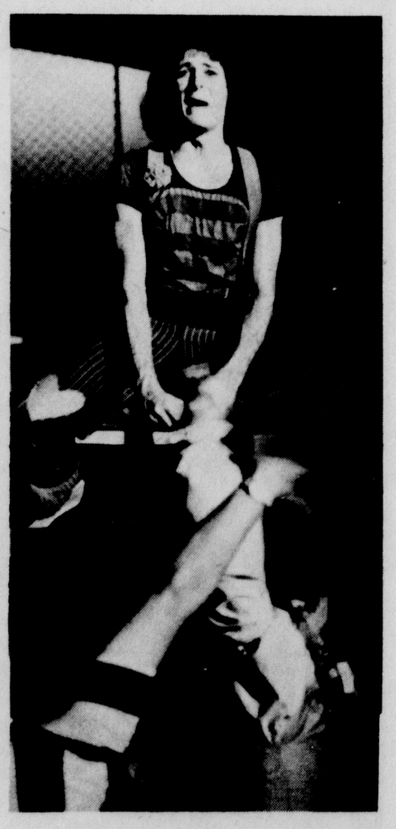

Carl Benton's talent as a choreographer was evident throughout the play, but the most memorable dance number was a softshoe done by Norwood and David Prittie (Judas), while they sang "All for the Best."

Accompanying the actors were Dennis Lang on the piano and Rich Fennig on the guitar and bass.

CAST FROM HEAVEN — This scene from the musical "Godspell" which was performed at Washington Middle School Monday evening, shows God standing in the background, immediately after rendering judgement. The girl on her back, tormented by the other two actresses on either side, was not allowed to enter through the golden gates.

CHRIST CRIES — Jesus Christ, portrayed by Chip Norwood, is pictured experiencing emotional agony in the play "Godspell" which was performed by the Kent Acting and Touring Co. at Washington Middle School Monday evening.

'Two by Two' closes Barn Theater season

Richard Rodgers' musical comedy "Two by Two" closes the premier season of the Sabina Barn Theater this Friday and Saturday, Aug. 8-9.

This heartwarming version of the Biblical story of Noah has won acclaim from previous Barn Theater audiences.

Noah has exactly one week to build an ark and take aboard every living thing two by two; including one stubborn son who doesn't want to go. Renewed faith in God sees Noah and his family through forty turbulent days and nights on the ark.

The Barn Theatre which operates under auspices from the regional camping committee of the West Ohio Conference of the United Methodist Church, had a highly successful first season according to managing director Fred Thayer.

Thayer states, "From this first season I've seen the need for more good theater in this area and we are looking forward to returning next summer with an even bigger and better program."

Curtain time for both shows is set for 8:15 p.m. with smorgasbord dinner being served at 6:30 p.m. Dinner reservations should be made six days in advance at the box office (513) 584-2671, 1-5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Indiana pastor dies suddenly

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — The Rev. Merrill B. McFall, 69, former pastor of United Methodist churches in Bloomington, Indianapolis, Columbus and Crown Point, died of a heart attack Wednesday.

Dr. McFall retired in 1972 after 40 years as a minister and leader in the Methodist church. The last 18 years he was senior minister of First United Methodist Church here.

A 1927 graduate of DePauw University, he was a former DePauw trustee. He was minister at Irvington United Methodist Church, Indianapolis, First United Methodist Church, Columbus, and First United Methodist Church, Crown Point.

Research grant made

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Research Corp. of New York City has made a $7,050 grant to the University of Toledo to aid Dr. James E. Gano, associate professor of chemistry, in his attempt to synthesize substances severely twisted from the normal shapes, the university said.

New lottery claim probed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The State Auditor's office is investigating complaints that Ohio Lottery employes were promised pay raises if they contributed to the mayoral campaign of James F. Dickerson, deputy lottery director.

State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson confirmed Wednesday that his office was investigating the complaints but added that investigators have "turned up nothing conrete."

Because lottery workers are not civil employes, Ferguson said that there is nothing illegal about lottery personnel contributing to the Cleveland mayoral campaign of Dickerson. But he said it would have been illegal for donations to be tied to pay raises granted to 30 employes in June.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer reports that Thomas B. Burnett, the head of computer operations for the lottery, said he was one of nine lottery employes who contributed to Dickerson's campaign.

Dickerson denied he has asked any lottery employe for money and added that Burnett probably made the allegations because he did not get a raise.

Florida native gets Toledo post

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Evelyn Wright, a native of Clewiston, Fla., has been name assistant director of student development at the University of Toledo, it was announced Wednesday.

The student development program was established in 1969 to help recruit economically and educationally disadvantaged students who have demonstrated college aptitude and to give them financial assistance.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Mention ABC's "NFL Monday Night Football" and most fans will talk of Howard Cosell's mouth, Alex Karras' weird humor, Fred Williamson's ineptness or that good ole boy of past seasons, Dandy Don Meredith, who now hangs his hat at NBC.

Few talk about Frank Gifford because he's the quiet man in ABC's noisy booth. He does his job without fuss, expertly, with a good supply of low-key humor. He may never make it at the rate he's going.

In fact, the 44-year-old native of Los Angeles almost didn't make it into sportscasting in the first place, having given serious consideration to movie acting while still in college.

Gifford, an All-American football star at the University of Southern California before joining the New York Giants, said he'd had small parts in a number of films while at USC.

But after joining the Giants and achieving a certain amount of fame in Fun City, he started thinking seriously about sportscasting in 1957, while still a Giants regular.

That year, he filled in on a local radio sports show for Phil Rizzuto, the ex-Yankee shortstop. He got the bug for the business, dropped the film idea and has been a sportscaster ever since.

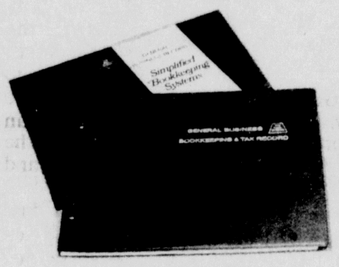

Ex-athletes who go into movies — like Williamson — don't seem to get hassled by colleagues in their new line of work. It's still a game.

But ex-athletes who go into sportscasting occasionally are resented by sportscasters who've never been pro athletes. And Gifford admits he drew his share of resentment when he started in broadcasting.

"And I think rightfully so," he adds. "They work all their lives at it, for maybe 15-20 years, and then they finally get into what you might call the big time.

"And it's kind of tough for someone like that to work that hard and all of a sudden see a man come off the football field and sit alongside him, to jump all these steps.

Elwood P. Suggins talking about the Huntington All-In-One® Account:

"My city cousin Harold finally convinced me about unlimited checking. But I'll never get used to his new hat."

"Yup, that Harold is sure with it. I mean, when he told me about how I could write all the checks I want for just $2 a month, why I warmed to the idea pretty quick-like. He said a Huntington All-In-One Account gave me many other bank services besides. Now that's a bargain. Yup, that Harold has some dang good modern ideas. But that hat. Gosh, it's the most far out thing I ever did see. I've got to have a long talk with that boy." Huntington Bank, member F.D.I.C.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Buxom gal sells peek and, with it, her good name

DEAR ABBY: I was invited to a house party last Saturday given by a woman who works with me. (I'm a 23-year-old divorcee.)

A rather good-looking guy introduced himself and said, "another fellow and I have a $20 bet on. He says you're wearing falsies, and I say you're not. If you prove it to me, the $20 is yours."

It so happens that I am 38-26-34, and I don't need falsies, so I said, "You win." Then I took him into the bedroom, unbuttoned my blouse just far enough to prove it and gave him a quick look.

He collected the $20 from his friend and gave it to me. I told him I was going to put it in the poor box at church the next morning, which is exactly what I did.

On Monday it was all over the office that I had done a strip-tease dance at the party!

Abby, I swear, I'm telling it like it was. Do you think what I did was so terrible? It was for a good cause.

MISS JUDGED

DEAR MISS: Face it, dear. You sold a quick peek for $20-a foolish gambit for a young woman who values her reputation.

DEAR ABBY: When does a mother say no? I am 77, have worked in factories for 44 years and have raised three sons alone after an early divorce. Two of my boys are fine. The youngest is my problem.

Mel, now 50, was in the Navy and graduated from college under the G.I. bill, but his big dream was getting into show business. (He is a good musician but not good enough to work the big time, which is all he will settle for.)

I have lost track of the money Mel has cost me. It seems like all I do is draw money out of the bank for him. My income is only $260 a month, and I am eating up my nest egg.

My other sons tell me I am foolish and that Mel can work if he wants to. (They have both sent him money but gave up.) Mel can sell, but he hates to get up in the morning and work a regular routine. He still thinks he can make it in show business.

How can a mother refuse her son? I love him so much. He never married. What am I to do?

MOTHER LOVE

DEAR MOTHER: Don't send Mel another penny! He probably never stuck with a job because he knew he didn't have to-Mother would support him. Tell him that you are all tapped out.

Not everyone can do what he wants to do for a living, in which case he does what he CAN. At 50, it's time Mel became a man. And at 77, you've earned a rest.

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter written by the lady who was told off when she mistook a little boy for a "nice little girl" in the supermarket.

When I was a kid, I remember going to the carnival, and for 25, a man would guess your weight. Now for another .25, he'll guess your sex.

Judy Collins' film focuses on piano teacher

By GREG McGARRY
Associated Press Writer

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Folksinger Judy Collins says she's thrilled that her documentary film about her former piano teacher, Dr. Antonia Brico, has resulted in more engagements for the noted female conductor. But Miss Collins says that wasn't her intention in making "Antonia: a Portrait of the Woman."

"I'm thrilled," Miss Collins said after a recent showing the film at the Saratoga Film Festival. "She now has two managers! She's been honored by Berkeley. She has a concert in the Hollywood Bowl, The American Symphony has contacted her. Most of your symphonies have contacted her, in fact.

"The fact that it helped her out is wonderful," she added. "But the film stands on its own . . . that's more important. This was not a crusade. This was a portrayal of someone's life I knew was interesting.

The film, nominated for an Academy Award in the best documentary category last year, portrays the struggle of the elderly woman who was frustrated throughout her life as she tried to break into the all-male circle of conductors. Dr. Brico is 73.

The film has been highly acclaimed, winning the Christopher Award, the Independent Film Critics Award and named one of the 10 best films of 1974 by Time magazine.

Miss Collins, 36, began studying piano under Dr. Brico in Denver when she was 9 years old.

"I broke from her instruction a long time ago when I was 16." Miss Collins said. "I said to myself, 'I want something besides the piano for breakfast, lunch and dinner.'" She said she practiced six hours daily.

Miss Collins switched to an old guitar her father had given her and eventually established herself as one of the top folksingers in the country.

As Miss Collins and codirector Gill Godmilov show in the film, Dr. Brico was frustrated at various stages of her career because she could not find a full-time job conducting.

In an interview segment of the 56-minute-long film, Miss Collins asked Dr. Brico if she takes pride in being a female pioneer in the field. "I would have given up that odious distinction to have conducted more," she replied. It was a moving scene, fraught with emotion, as the aging conductor asked her former student how she would like it if she only could give five performances a year.

"I have five performances a year," Dr. Brico said. "I'm strong enough to have five a month. . . It's like giving birth to a baby and then having it taken away from you."

JUDY COLLINS

Miss Collins said she had to prod Dr. Brico into revealing such feelings.

"First of all it occurred to me that this was my teacher and I didn't want to antagonize her. But I had to prod her. I had to almost attack her into revealing certain things. But I was surprised at her ability to open up."

Dr. Brico made headlines in 1935 when she conducted the New York Women's Symphony in New York's Town Hall. Three years later she became the first woman to conduct the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra. For years she has conducted a community orchestra in Denver.

Miss Collins said she decided to make the film about three years ago when she renewed her friendship with Dr. Brico.

"The way I got to the film was I found myself confronted with an idea — a project — that I had in mind," she said. "I realized that her life was something extraordinary that I'd have to share. I looked for the medium that would help me and settled on film because I was giddy and foolish enough to jump into something I knew nothing about."

She said her friendship with Dr. Brico grew considerably in the six months of filming. And she Dr. Brico even reacted with praise when Miss Collins sang her a song she had written.

"Although we were always friends, I wasn't always quite sure that she was terribly wild about what I was doing," Miss Collins explained. "She still says, 'You have the hands for piano. You could have gone right to the top.' "

Letters from readers of R-H

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Whether to applaud or condemn the presentation of Godspell presented Monday evening at the Washington C. H. Middle School auditorium depends upon what you were looking for. If it was the desire to be entertained that motivated you to pay the modest entrance fee, in my opinion you received a bargain. If you went expecting to observe a professionally executed theatrical production, you again in my opinion should have gone away from the performance well satisfied. However, if you went to hear what the title promises, the good news concerning Jesus Christ, you left deeply disappointed.

My reason for saying this has nothing to do with the unorthodox way in which the life and teachings of Jesus was presented, although I must admit it did take some getting used to. But my appreciation for the great evangelist of a bygone generation, Billy Sunday, who often emphasized a point by literally leaping over the pulpit, a feat which his athletic abilities made possible, has taught me that God can honor and use unorthodox ways of communication.

My dismal reaction to the presentation of Godspell lies in the fact that it never got to the good news about Jesus Christ. While promising to present the story of Jesus as found in the book of Matthew, it did not. "Godspell" closes with a dead Jesus, while Matthew's account closes with a resurrected, living Lord. Had the actual life of Jesus ended as presented in Godspell, there would never have been a Godspell production, for Jesus would have been forgotten with the passing of his generation. The followers of Jesus left the place where he was crucified dead to return to their former occupations and way of life, convinced that they had been wrong in believing Jesus to be their long promised saviour. It was not until he arose from the dead that their faith was restored, and they became heroic, proclaimers of the gospel which changes human lives and influences the course of history.

Godspell is incorrectly named for it says nothing about the good news concerning Jesus Christ, and its effect can only be misleading and harmful to the Christian cause.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

In Saturday's letter to the editor, I'm in 100 per cent agreement with William E. Cupp's viewpoint on the fire hydrant painting.

Mr. Everitt Robbins' company loyalty supercedes the loyalty to his country. This is fine to a point but after all we will never again see a bicentennial.

Where would his employer be if it weren't for loyal and dedicated Americans for the past 200 years? If it weren't for them he wouldn't have any company to work for.

I think Mr. Robbins showed very poor judgment on his decision. I think he could have used a little more descretion in what he did.

The pitiful part of this is that the employes of the water company are getting the blunt end of this because Mr. Robbins is now vacationing.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Mrs. Charles Myers (my advisor) and I just recently returned from a most enjoyable and rewarding week in Washington D.C., where we attended the National Convention of the Future Homemakers of America held at the Washington Hilton Hotel. We had a great convention and were able to do quite a bit of sight-seeing.

I want to publicly express my thanks and gratitude to the people of Fayette County for their concern about young people and for helping to make my trip possible. This was a wonderful experience and one I shall always treasure among my teenage memories.

While at the convention, I met many great kids from all over the U.S. I know I have made friendships I shall never forget.

I want again to thank Mrs. Myers, for all the time and help she has given me, my family for their help and encouragement and all the fine people who helped to make my trip possible.

I felt very proud to represent my school, community and the state of Ohio.

Phantom 'candidate' running for mayor

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Omaha's 1977 mayoral campaign is off to an early start, or is it?

Fifty-two billboard signs proclaiming the candidacy of Jim Haubenschild now dot the city, but nobody seems to know Haubenschild.

Al Johnson, manager of Imperial Outdoor Advertising, Inc., said his firm was asked to design and erect the signs by an agency that asked to remain anonymous.

"The agency has assured me he is a real live person," said Johnson, adding that he has been doing business for about 10 years with the agency involved.

He said there didn't seem to be anything unscrupulous or illegal about the ad campaign, so he felt obligated to take the order.

"I don't know Mr. Haubenschild," he said, "I was told that his identity and other information will be made known later this month."

If Haubenschild really intends to run for the office now held by Mayor Edward Zorinsky, he had better check the rules.

Haubenschild is not a registered voter in Omaha, a must to become mayor. And spokesmen for the Douglas County Republican and Democratic Committees are questioning the legality of the signs because they don't say who is paying for the political advertising.

Beyond that, no one at either Democratic or Republican headquarters has ever heard of him. He is not listed in the telephone directories for the past five years, and he does not have a car registered in Douglas County.

An official of one major Omaha advertising firms says he thinks the whole thing is part of a project to test the community's awareness of outdoor advertising.

"The signs are probably testing the power of billboards, and later someone will make a survey in the community asking if people know Jim Haubenschild," the advertising executive said.

Whoever is undertaking the campaign must be serious or rich, because the signs each cost about $100 per month, according to Johnson.

Jaycees to participate in fund-raising event

The Washington C.H. Jaycees Wednesday night agreed to participate in a muscular dystrophy carnival August 23 at McDonald's Restaurant, S. Elm Street.

Clem Edwards, president of the Jaycees, said half of the proceeds raised from the benefit carnival will be given to Fayette Memorial Hospital and the other half to the muscular dystrophy organization for research of the crippling disease.

In another related matter, the Jaycees agreed to assist in the annual Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy telethon to be held in Washington C.H. Aug. 31 and Sept. 1. The Jaycees will assist by answering telephone pledges.

The 17 members present also discussed forming a Jaycee chapter in Jeffersonville. The local extension committee will be meeting with prospective Jeffersonville Jaycees at 7:30 p.m. at the Home Restaurant.

Discussion was also held on the recent sale of official bicentennial calendars in the Wshington C.H. area. Another door-to-door sale will be held Aug. 12 and Aug. 14.

It was reported that the chapter's bicentennial committee is preparing a number of projects for the Fourth of July celebration next year. It was also announced that the organization's next paper drive will be held from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Sept. 20-21 at the Seaway parking lot.

Guests for the meeting were Lester Beers and Glenn Riley.

Delegates named for NFO meeting

Sixteen members of the Fayette County National Farmers Organization were elected delegates to the Sixth Congressional District NFO convention during the regular monthly meeting of the Fayette County group.

Elected at the picnic meeting, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Cornell, near South Solon, were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pavey, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Cornell, Mr. and Mrs. Ancel Creamer, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Garringer, Mrs. William Burr, Mr. and Mrs. David Carr, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Black, Forrest Reser, James Pierson and Marian Stockwell.

The convention is being held Monday at 8:30 p.m. in the Highland County Courthouse, Hillsboro.

Commodity reports were presented and it was announced the Ohio NFO picnic will be held Sunday at the Madison County Fairgrounds, London. All NFO members and their families are invited to attend and bring food and drink. NFO ground beef will be grilled.

The next meeting of the Fayette County NFO will be held with another picnic dinner Sept. 3 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ancel Creamer, Jeffersonville.

Birch Bayh eyes presidential race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Perhaps the person who wins the 1976 Democratic presidential nominatin is the one "who's going to be more selective" about the primaries he enters, says Sen. Birch Bayh.

Bayh told a news conference Wednesday if he decides to seek the nomination he may run only in a portion of some states. He said he would run only in congressional districts where he had strong support.

In the busiest unit of the busiest department in the country firemen respond to calls every 45 minutes — day and night.

This is Engine Company 82, Ladder Number 31, Battalion 27 of the New York City Fire Department.

"The Bronx is Burning," a first-run television program, will examine the firemen of Engnine Company 82, the job they do and the place they do it — New York's South Bronx ghetto.

Appropriately, the telecast takes place in the hot summer months, when blighted neighborhoods across the country frequently erupt in flame.

Air time is 10 p.m. Monday, Aug. 11 on WBNS-TV (Ch. 10) for this third of six specials in the "Window on the World" series, produced by the British Broadcasting Corporation and Time-Life Television and sponsored by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. and the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio.

The wide-ranging series, narrated by Burgess Meredith, began with biographical documentaries on Rose Kennedy and Nikita Khrushchev. The third program representes an exciting change of pace.

The South Bronx is a place of spiritual poverty, a place of no hope and no way out. And the hopelessness is manifested in fire. Last year, Engine Company 82 responded to more than 10,000 calls. On each trip, the firemen have learned to expect the unexpected — and the dangerous.

The buildings they must enter may have been booby-trapped. Or they may have to fight the very people they have come to save. Roaming gangs and desperate junkies have made the area a no man's land for municipal services and turned the people into nomads, moving from building to building as each tenement is torched or burglarized.

British correspondent Jeremy James interviews the men who put their lives on the line every day. Featured is Dennis Smith, whose book, "Report from Engine Company 82," became a national best-seller.

"Technology hasn't shown us a safer way to fight a fire — except getting closer to it and putting water on it," Smith says.

"The Bronx is Burning" will show the viewer exactly what Smith is talking about — and more.

Following "The Bronx Is Burning," next month's fourth program in the never-before-seen "Window" series will explore a little-known side of Russia, "KGB — The Soviet Secret Police."

The first Zeppelin flight was in 1900 by Germany's Count Ferdinanc von Zeppelin. He flew the first of his long series of rigid-frame airships, which attained a speed of 18 miles per hour and got 3½ miles before its steering gear failed, on July 2, 1900.

Police officer faces discipline

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A seven-year member of the Indianapolis Police Department was suspended Wednesday for 10 days in the beating of a handcuffed youth.

Chief Kenneth Hale announced Patrolman Jerome T. Warren, 30, was suspended without pay for allegedly striking the youth on or about the face. He will appear next week at a disciplinary hearing which will decide a punishment, Hale said. He could be dismissed from the force.

Meanwhile, the FBI said Wednesday it was entering the case to determine whether the civil rights of Harold A. Baker, 16, were violated. Police said Baker and a companion, Frederick Naumayer, 15, jumped from a stolen truck July 15 and tried to flee. Naumayer was shot to death and Baker captured.

Voters turn down Tiffin school levy

TIFFIN, Ohio (AP) — Voters in the Tiffin Joint Vocational School District defeated a 10-year, 3.5-mill levy in a special election Tuesday.

District officials said the 3-1 defeat would mean JVS pupils from Tiffin, Fostoria and surrounding communities would have to attend another nearby vo-ed school.

Bowen presides over medic board

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Gov. Otis R. Bowen presided over the swearing in of a new Indiana Board of Medical Registration and Examination Wednesday.

All seven members of the previous board resigned in a dispute over the relicensing of Dr. Robert E. Hales, who escaped from Beatty Memorial Hospital at Westville where he was confined as a criminal sexual psychopath. Hales was hired as a physician at the Indiana State Prison.

Bowen, a physician, assumed the acting chairmanship of the meeting and suggested how the board should select its officers. He noted members could elect anyone they wanted as president but added the chairman traditionally has been a medical doctor of the same political party as the governor.

So the three Republican physicians on the new board caucused and Dr. Ernest R. Beaver of Rensselaer was selected.

Hearst probe continues

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A federal grand jury reconvenes here today to question at least one reluctant witness believed to have spent part of the 1974 summer with missing heiress Patricia Hearst.

Micki McGee Scott has been subpoenaed, and reportedly will be granted immunity from future prosecution for her testimony. But she has already pledged not to cooperate.

Her husband, Jack, a sports critic and former athletic director at Oberlin College in Ohio, has been subpoenaed to appear before the jury Sept. 4.

"We don't look forward to it, but of course we're prepared to go to jail," Scott said.

The Scotts reportedly rented a house in South Canaan, Pa., near Scranton, last summer where Miss Hearst and two of her Symbionese Liberation Army friends hid.

Miss Hearst, 21, daughter of Randolph A. Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, was kidnaped Feb. 4, 1974, by the SLA.

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA

6th District, Ohio

President Ford's thirty-sixth veto and the fourth Congressional override of that veto must have the American people wondering just what is going on in the Nation's Capital.

It basically boils down to the question of whether the Federal Government will continue to pile deficit on top of deficit with its spending, or whether Congress will give some meaning to budget reform and hold this kind of spending to a minimum.

THE IDEAL policy would be to eliminate federal deficits entirely, but the recent history of federal spending has shown that neither the budget makers in the White House nor Congressional spenders are inclined to bite the bullet where staying within the budget is concerned.

The Presidential veto is a perfectly legitimate and necessary power, and one of the best of those checks and balances among our three co-equal branches of the government. Established by the Constitution, the Presidential veto has played an important role in the legislative process by making it possible for excessive Congressional action to be modifided and for important legislation to be considered further. It is not necessarily the dead-end of legislation.

Earlier this year, Congress approved a guideline budget, projecting spending of $367 billion, which carries a deficit of about $68.8 billion. This was the first action under the Budget Reform act passed last year, which established new House and Senate Budget committees to develop a Congressional version of the budget. President Ford had previously requested that the line be held at $60 billion, and he apparently intends to do all possible to hold the deficit to that amount.

Under the new budget-making procedure, Congress is required to set spending limits, based on priorities, and then abide by those ceilings. However, it will certainly exceed its own deficit spending limit, with action on most appropriations bills yet to come.

To make matters worse, Congress has already raised the national debt ceiling to a record high of $577 billion, and will be asked to raise it again sometime before November 15, when the current ceiling expires.

Despite three successful Presidential vetoes of spending bills that exceeded the budget figures, the danger of a deficit as high as $100 billion still exists. I have supported many of the President's veto actions, because I believe that we must draw the line on federal spending and federal deficits — and stick to it!

During this week's House debate on the Presidential veto of a $2 billion health services bill, one member said, "Cutting spending is a thankless task" —and he was right. It is also a difficult one. The effects of legislation on the economy and on all American taxpayers must be weighed against the need and potential benefits of programs authorized or funded through such legislation.

The double problems of recession and inflation currently plaguing our economy have necessarily become overriding considerations in most legislation before Congress and before the President for signature.

We have only to see the spectacle of New York City to realize the consequences of a government spending money that it does not have. The Federal Government may be around to help New York City, but who will bail out the Federal Government if it follows the same disastrous course?

The huge deficits being created pose a serious threat to our private enterprise system. They increase federal borrowing — which already accounts for more than two-thirds of the total borrowings in our capital markets — and this crowds out private borrowers. The net results are higher interest rates and more inflation.

THE COST of living is related directly to the inflation created by the Federal Government's policies of deficit spending and borrowing. Further rises in the cost of living affect all Americans.

Presidential veto action has occurred on legislation approved by Congress which calls for spending in excess of the President's budget recommendations. The health services bill, for example, authorized spending of $1.1 billion over the President's budget request for the next two years.

Every line item of spending has its supporters, no matter what the amount or the need for the program being funded. Yet, a vote to sustain a Presidential veto of an inflationary legislative package does not necessarily indicate opposition to those programs funded under such legislation.

It is more often a directive to Congress to go back to the drawing boards, take another look at the budget it was supposed to follow, and come forth with a more reasonable spending figure.

After all, no matter what the legislation may be, it will be financed with the taxpayers' money. They will foot the bill for the federal spending involved — and the inflation created.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. defense analysts hope the recent talks between U.S. and Soviet leaders may help break a 22-month deadlock in negotiations over mutual force reductions in central Europe.

They are looking for signs of progress when East-West diplomats enter the next round of the force reduction talks in Vienna next month in the wake of meetings between President Ford and Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev in Helsinki last week.

Pentagon sources say Western diplomats will push a proposal for some cutbacks in U.S. nuclear weapons in Western Europe in exchange for withdrawal by the Russians of a tank army.

The Western proposal reportedly would involve a reduction of some 1,000 U.S. tactical nuclear warheads from the 7,000 said to be in Western Europe, as well as a cutback in fighterbombers and short-range missiles which would deliver them against enemy targets.

The United States keeps nuclear weapons in Europe to deter possible Soviet attack. U.S. officials have said such weapons would be used if necessary to prevent the North Atlantic alliance's forces from being overwhelmed by superior tankled Soviet armies.

Under the Western proposal being put forward, the Russians would compensate for a reduction in U.S. tactical nuclear weapons in Europe by removing from the central region a full army of 68,000 men and 1,700 tanks.

According to current Pentagon estimates, the Russians and their Warsaw Pact allies number about 930,000 men and more than 16,000 tanks in central Europe, facing 777,000 allied troops and 6,000 tanks.

The rival tactical air forces are roughly equivalent, with about 2,900 planes on both sides. But allied planes are regarded as superior for now.

Sources familiar with the negotiations say the Russians have consistently refused to consider a Western proposal for a ceiling of about 700,000 men on both sides.

EASIER TO HOLD THAN THE MONEY — Bill Boylan's little gold block is worth somewhere in the vicinity of $3,100. He had it refined in Cincinnati by a gold and silver refining company and it consists of many pieces of gold jewelry and old gold rings Boylan has collected during his many years in the jewelry business. According to him, "It's much more of a conversation piece than a bunch of old rings and therefore it's not for sale; besides I'm kinda attached to it."

Jewelry remnants now form valuable display

By MARK THELLMANN

Now that the government has made it legal for private citizens to own gold, some have taken advantage of the investment, but few have displayed this prized yellow substance where those who have never seen it in any quantity outside of a capped tooth or a wedding band can view it.

But, Bill Boylan, owner of the Boylan Jewelry store, 126 N. Fayette St., has a little block of it he'll let you take a look at. It's on exhibit in his store display window during the daytime, but it disappears every night into a hiding place where he knows it will be safe.

The mini-gold brick, composed of gold remnants such as rings and other jewelry he has acquired from his jewelry business over the past several years, fits easily into one's hand; much easier than a wad of money equal its worth of approximately $3,100. Of course that value was computed from the market price last week which stood at $173.12 per ounce Friday. The value of gold changes almost daily.

Boylan, who started learning the jewelry trade at the age of 17 (in 1947) decided to have the block made a couple of months ago. "The Cincinnati Gold and Silver Refining Co. did the job for me, but it took them six weeks," Boylan stated. "It's a pretty complicated process and involves a great deal of time," he added.

The block is stamped "Cincinnati," along with the weight; 18, 18.375 ounces; 999.9 fine and a serial number. Although gold is a relatively soft metal, you can't bend the yellow rectangle or scratch it with your fingernail.

"It's the weight which surprises most people when they pick it up to examine," Boylan said. "Although it's marked 18.375 ounces, there are 'tory' ounces, 12 of which make one pound instead of the common 16. Therefore, it weighs around a pound and one-half."

Judge has trying time with mace-spraying man

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — It was a trying day for Hamilton County Municipal Court judges.

First, it was a mace-spraying defendant who shattered the courtroom calm. Then the county's public defender's office and one of its lawyers was cited for contempt of court.

Larry Horton, 45, a selfstyled attorney, began spraying court officials after Judge Joseph Luebbers ordered the Cincinnati man held for psychiatric examination.

Horton, in court on charges of criminal trespassing, was subdued and removed from the court.

He leveled contempt charges against attorney John Podesta, a public defender, who was representing a man cited for driving while intoxicated.

Judge Doan took the action when it was discovered Podesta's client earns more than $15,000 a year-twice as much as allowed under legal guidelines.

Podesta argued that the defendant's take-home pay was $150 a week or $5 above the guidelines for indigency qualifications.

Judge Doan stood firm, charging Podesta with contempt and citing the entire public defender's office. He defended his action, saying "a number is a number and a rule is a rule."

It was the fourth incident within a week that a public defender has been cited with contempt by a Hamilton County judge.

Two local delegates attending state 4-H conservation camp

Jay Bloomer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcom Bloomer, 1259 Hess Road, and Jane Kearney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kearney, 3604 White Road, are participating along with 200 other Ohio youngsters in the 40th Ohio 4-H Conservation Camp through August 9 at Camp Ohio.

According to Jack Sommers, Fayette County 4-H extension agent, while at camp Jay and Jane will learn about water resources, outdoor life and recreation, forestry, land and its use and wildlife.

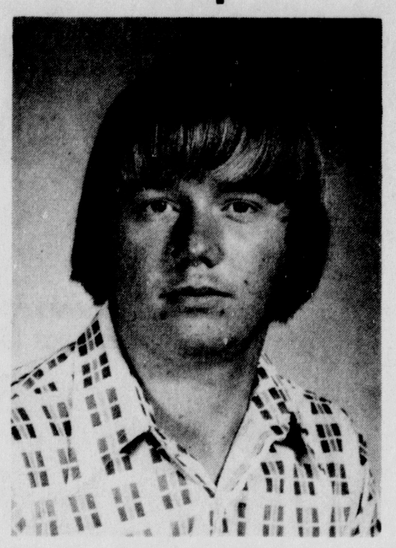

Campers will also visit a nearby sawmill, strip mine, fish hatchery, paper mill and experimental watershed.

The camp is sponsored by the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service with support from Gene Derickson, Ohio Federation of Soil and Water Conservation districts, Columbus; C. L. Horn, Federal-Cartridge Corp., Minneapolis, Minn., and R. H. Oman, the Columbus Foundation (Rausenberger Conservation Fund), Columbus.

"Such conservation camps are held in 30 states and annually provide thousands of youngsters with the opportunity to learn more about the conservation of natural resources," Sommers said.

'Leaves festival' slated Oct. 16-19 in Bainbridge

BINBRIDGE — The colorful pageantry and autumn splendor of the fall foilage will reign over the 1975 Fall Festival of Leaves celebration in Bainbridge, located in a picturesque section of the state in southwestern Ross County.

The event will be held Oct. 16-19.

Various special events have been planned to entertain the estimated 30,000 tourists who will attend this year's festival. Daily activities include flea markets, arts and crafts exhibits, several musical shows, parades, amusement rides, and self-conducted tours of the Skyline Drive, historic landmarks and the first dental school in the nation.

Added attractions include a hot air balloon ascension sponsored by the Huntington Bank of Columbus, a horse show, horse shoe pitching contest, karate demonstration, muzzle loader shoot, fiddler's and tobacco spitting contests, bass fishing clinic and a variety of craft exhibits including a shoemaker, glassblower, blacksmith, quilters and weavers.

Brown to check Rhodes petitions

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Secretary of State Ted W. Brown said his office will begin today a "desk check" of Gov. James A. Rhodes' November ballot petitions before sending them back to county election boards for verification.

Rhodes and a contingent of supporters, including one Democratic senator, delivered to Brown's office Wednesday the signatures of 505,403 Ohioans who want the governor's four-part economic package on the statewide ballot.

The total by far exceeded the 307,201 required, but Brown pointed out that the law requires that the signatures be verified as those of qualified voters. Rhodes' petition drive, begun last spring after his proposed constitutional amendments bogged down in the legislature, exceeded the minimum by about 60 per cent.

"I am deeply grateful for the efforts of everyone who helped" the governor said, adding that the challenge ahead is to win approval of voters "to create jobs and take Ohioans off welfare and unemployment rolls."

Sen. Robert T. Secrest, D-20 Cambridge, a conservative Democrat who "trusts the governor's judgment" as to the needs of Ohio, said the program would help the state get back a greater share of the tax money it sends to Washington and the package should be approved for that reason if no other.

Rhodes told a news conference, in response to a question, that he sees nothing wrong with state employes helping promote the four issues, even on state time within certain bounds. "I don't think anyone should go in and give them the afternoons off," he said.

The governor as much an invited an investigation mentioned as a possibility by Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson, a Democrat, into such efforts by public employes. "If anyone wants to make some findings, they can start with me. I'm here right now on state time," Rhodes declared.

He explained that he thinks all Ohioans should take part in helping promote the state's economic future. "We're trying to take the misery out of the lives of 600,000 Ohioans who are unemployed," he added.

Airlines strike over

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The Air Line Pilots Association ended its three-day strike against Northwest Airlines early today with the signing of a new three-year contract, said W.J. Usery Jr., director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

A Northwest offical said there was a good chance some of the airline's flights would be resumed today but he said not many.

Northwest is the nation's seventh largest airline with major routes across the northern part of the United States and to Japan.

Cooler air sweeps over U.S. heartland

By The Associated Press

A large high pressure center over the Great Lakes kept most of the nation's heartland dry and relatively cool today. There were isolated thundershowers through much of the rest of the country as a quiet summer weather pattern continued.

Mild weather extended from New England through the middle Mississippi Valley. Temperatures elsewhere were higher under mostly sunny skies.

A cold front caused considerable cloudiness and thundershowers over the Appalachians and along much of the Atlantic Coast from New York and New England into northern Georgia. There were scattered showers also from southern Virginia into the Carolinas.

Let's tour Ohio series

A visit to Ohio's oldest city, Marietta, and a trip across the Ohio River to Parkersburg, West Virginia, makes AAA's suggested tour this week a two-state venture.

A visit to Ohio's oldest city

MARIETTA

(1) Campus Martius Museum, corner of Washington, 2nd Sts. Museum brings to life the fort built at the first organized settlement in the Northwest Territory. Exhibits include the original home of the settlement's superintendent, Rufus Putnam, enclosed within the walls of the museum. Visitors may tour entire home, completely furnished as it would have been in the 1780's. Most furnishings actually belonged to the Putnam family. Also within the museum are exhibits of original objects portraying the Northwest Territory and early Ohio. Primitive oil paintings period rooms, tools, surveying instruments, craft projects, furniture and furnishings are displayed in two large and one small gallery. Admission charge.

(2) W.P. Snyder, Jr. One of the last stern-wheelers to travel the Ohio River. Built in 1918, continued in service until 1955. Moored adjacent to the Ohio River Museum, Washington and Front Sts. One of the first all metal towboats powered by steam on the Ohio River. Admission charge.

(3) Mound Cemetery. Contains the "Conus", an example of the prehistoric Moundbuilders' art. The burial place of a chief, it is 30 feet high. Within the cemetery are graves of many early settlers and Revolutionary War soldiers.

(4) Ohio River Museum, located on Front St. in Marietta on banks of Muskingum River. The Museum is composed of three separate elevated buildings connected by covered walkways, each dealing with different facets of Ohio's rivers and streams. The first area represents the natural history of the river, fish, and wildlife that live in or by the water. The middle enclosure deals with the age of the steamboat, complete with 19 elaborate Ohio and Muskingum river steamboat models. The final building shows how man has conquered the river's barriers with bridges, ferryboats and dams. A special dual admission is available for visitors to see both the River Museum and Campus Martius, located a blockaway, at a reduced rate.

(5) Muskingum Park. "Start Westward" Monument. Memorial to the start of the westward expansion of the Northwest Territory.

PARKERSBURG, W. VA.

(6) Parkersburg, W. Va. If you have time and gasoline, a trip to nearby Parkersburg, W. Va., would be worth it. City Park, 55 acres on Park Ave. 3 blocks north of U.S. 50, has game courts, swimming pool, pavilion and picnic facilities. Centennial Cabin and Museum, built in 1804, houses interesting relics and documents of pioneer days in Area. Admission charge.

Blennerhasset Island. 1 mile below Parkersburg in the Ohio River is Blennerhassett Island. Here in 1709, Harman Blennerhasset, a wealthy English immigrant, built the most palatial home west of the Alleghenies. It also was here that Aaron Burr is said to have plotted a conspiracy for establishing an empire in the Southwest Territory. A view of the island can be seen from the lookout on old Route 7.

PORTLAND

(7) Buffington Island State Monument, 4 acres on SR 124 and Ohio River, Site of only Civil War battle fought on Ohio soil.

The first power plant in North America to send alternating current to an industrial user was the Ames Power Plant. Located in the high mountains of Colorado, the plant supplied power for the Gold King Mine. It is still in operation.

Reds breeze past Giants

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds are laughing all the way to the National League West pennant.

"We're using all our players these days — it keeps everyone happy," said Manager Sparky Anderson after his muscled Reds walloped the San Francisco Giants 12-5 Wednesday.

One of those Sunshine Boys that Anderson used against San Francisco was Darrel Chaney. Subbing for Dave Concepcion at shortstop, Chaney collected three of the Reds' 20 hits and embellished his reputation as a Giant killer.

"I've got more than half my hits this season off Giants' pitching," said Chaney, who is batting .409 against San Francisco.

Coupled with the Los Angeles Dodgers' 5-4 loss to the Atlanta Braves Wednesday night, the Reds improved their mountainous lead in the West to 16½ games — their biggest of the season.

In the other National League games, the New York Mets beat the Montreal Expos 9-6 in a rain-shortened affair; the St. Louis Cardinals trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 and the San Diego Padres turned back the Houston Astros 6-1. The Chicago-Philadelphia game was rained out.

Chaney knocked in three runs with two doubles and a single and Cesar Geronimo belted a pair of triples to lead Cincinnati's high-powered attack.

Giants' starter Jim Barr was battered for nine hits and five runs in three innings.

Braves 5, Dodgers 4

Rowland Office and Dave May drilled run-scoring singles in the ninth inning to give Atlanta its victory over Los Angeles.

Dusty Baker walked to start the Atlanta ninth and moved to second on a single by Ed Goodson. The runners moved up on a sacrifice bunt before Office tied the game at 4-4 with a single.

Mets 9, Expos 6

Del Unser's three-run double highlighted a seven-run sixth inning and powered New York over Montreal in Roy McMillan's managerial debut. The Expos scored two runs in the ninth on a Mets' error and a bases-loaded walk and had nobody out when rain stopped play.

McMillan was named manager of the Mets earlier Wednesday after Yogi Berra was fired. The new manager had held a one-hour meeting with the team before the game.

Cardinals 4, Pirates 2

Buddy Bradford hit a home run and Ken Reitz tripled to spark a three-run St. Louis fifth and lead the Cardinals over Pittsburgh. St. Louis starter John Denny, 6-3, surrended only two singles to the National League Eastern Division leaders before running into trouble in the eighth inning, when the Pirates scored their only run.

Padres 6, Astros 1

Left-hander Randy Jones pitched a two-hitter and posted his 15th victory as San Diego defeated Houston. Jones, 15-6, a 22-game loser last year, lost his bid for his seventh shutout of the year in the third when Bob Watson led off with a triple and scored on Cliff Johnson's infield out.

Indians 5, Yanks 3

Rico Carty hit a three-run homer for Cleveland in the sixth but the big difference was reliever Dave LaRoche, who came in with the bases full of Yanks and nobody out in the eighth and struck out the side.

White Sox 11, Angels 1

Bill Melton knocked in five runs, three with a homer, and Jim Kaat posted his 16th victory with a five-hitter in the White Sox' rout of California. Melton slugged his 10th homer to cap a four-run first inning, singled for a run in the second and doubled one home in the eighth.

Red Sox 5, Brewers 2

Rick Burleson's double and Denny Doyle's single gave the Red Sox an eighth-inning run, their first in 18 innings, before they went to town in the ninth. Cecil Cooper's double and Rico Petrocelli's single tied it.

HERE COMES AN ACE — At least that's the hope of Earl Crosswhite as he prepares to serve during a mixed-doubles match in the Washington C.H. City Tennis Tournament being held this week at the senior high courts. Crosswhite and his teammate Beverly Qualls lost the match to Jean Perril and Latricia Robinson in straight sets, 6-0, 6-2.

Pfeifer secures finals spot

City tennis field narrows

One finals spot in the Men's Championship Flight of the City Tennis tournament is filled and the other rests on the outcome of tonights 6 p.m. match between Phil Snow and Douge Dye.

Maurice Pfeifer topped Earl Crosswhite in two sets, 6-0, 6-2, to advance to Sunday's final match in the tourney's top flight while Snow beat Steve Yambor, 7-6, 6-0, to earn the right to face Dye in the semifinals.

The winner of the Snow-Dye match will meet Pfeifer at 6 p.m. Sunday on the Washington Senior High School courts.

In men's first Flight action Wednesday, Rick Crooks beat Mike Domenico to move into that division's semifinals play.

Ron Hanna and Jeff Tuvell fill two of the remaining three spots in the semifinals with the other spot pending the outcome of the Mike Qualls-Rob Herron match.

In Men's Doubles competition, Joe Banks and Greg Gilmore took a touch match from Charlie Wright and Marty Rodgers, 4-6, 6-4 and 6-3. Yambor-Snow and Nelson Brownell - Pfeifer join Banks and Gilmore in the flight's semifinals.

In the Boys' 18-under division all four first-round matches have been completed with Greg Gilmore topping Scott Geyer, Mike Qualls beating Bryan Connell, Jeff Cash taking Brad Maust in three sets and Stuart Foster easily handling Butch Buckley.

The Qualls-Connell match went three sets of 5-7, 7-6 and 7-6, in favor of Qualls to be the closest contested match of the tourney.

Latricia Robinson topped Rose Ann Brownell, 6-1, 6-2, in Women's singles play and the team of Latricia Robinson and Sally Robinson beat Brownell and Beverly Qualls in the Women's Doubles competition.

Tom Weiskopf eyes PGA golf crown

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Tom Weiskopf shrugged off the galling memory of his $50,000 disappointment at Westchester and put himself high today on the list of half-dozen men—no more—he thinks capable of winning the PGA golf crown.

"I have forgotten the tournament last week. It is over. It is final. You can't let a thing like that bug you," said the temperamental stylist who blew a seven-stroke halfway lead last weekend in one of the world's richest events.

"I don't feel I gave it away. After all, Gene Littler had to sink a hole-in-one to win it. I didn't play a loose shot. Maybe it was for the best. If I had won there, I might not be as keen here.

The 6-foot-3 Weiskopf, who only a week earlier had beaten Jack Nicklaus in a playoff for the Canadian Open, is one of the strong advance favorites in the field of 138 touring and teaching pros who tee off in their family event today over the long and tough Firestone course, scene of two previous PGAs as well as the American Golf Classic and World Series. It is a 7,180-yard test of brute strength playing to a par 70.

"There is nothing subtle about this course," Weiskopf said. "It is blast, blast, blast. You just get out there and slug. That's the reason I think you can limit the real contenders to a handful.

"Nicklaus, of course. Lee Trevino because he drives so straight. Johnny Miller, streaky but tremendous. Arnold Palmer, still as good a driver as there is in golf. And Hale Irwin, with those good long irons and playing very confidently."

And, it goes without saying— Tom Weiskopf.

Many students of the game regard Weiskopf as the finest striker of the ball on the tour, a player of tremendous natural ability whose success has been slowed by a trigger temper and flashes of immature petulance.

It is a fault that Long Tom doesn't disavow. He admits he is highly emotional but contends he is learning to harness his outbursts. He believes he can play golf as well as anybody. Most people agree.

Yogi gets axed

McMillan new Mets field boss

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy McMillan, new manager of the New York Mets, will make his presence felt in the clubhouse, if not in the headlines.

McMillan, a nondescript second-stringer in the managerial ranks until he was named to replace the fired Yogi Berra, laid it on the line to his players in a team meeting before Wednesday night's 9-6 victory over the Montreal Expos.

"Yogi was a little closer to the players," said Mets third baseman Joe Torre, "but Roy lets everyone know just who the manager is.

"We had a team meeting before the game, and he told us what he expected," Torre said. "He asked us not to do anything different, just win ball games."

McMillan, 46, has been with the Mets as a coach under Berra since 1973 after managing the Mets farm team in Visalia, Calif.

"It's hard to say what I think," said outfielder Gene Clines, acquired in preseason from Pittsburgh. "It's my first year here. For most guys, it takes time to form an opinion.

"But one thing," Clines added, "there didn't seem to be any communication between the players and Yogi. Maybe when he benched a guy, he should have taken him aside and had a little chat."

The Mets' star pitcher, Tom Seaver, said he "had felt it coming" for some time and asked if he anticipated any changes under McMillan, he said: "Well, there's a different man managing. Sure, things will be different ... different in a very positive way.

"It's a great thing for Mac," he added.

The squat, 50-year-old Berra is only the second manager to win pennants in both major leagues. But this year, after 3½ years as the Mets' manager, Berra had guided New York nowhere. After ending a five-game losing streak Wednesday night in which they had gone through 55 scoreless innings, the Mets still were mired 8½ games behind the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

Yogi's job apparently had been in jeopardy since last season, when the club wound up in fifth place. "This whole thing is to a degree a hangover from last year," said Mets chairman of the board, M. Donald Grant.

Rufus Mayes ready to take on Stanfill

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP)— Keeping the Miami Dolphins' defense at bay boils down to a one-man war. For Rufus Mayes of the Cincinnati Bengals, the assignment is akin to capping a whirlwind.

The former Ohio State All-American offensive tackle renews his longtime rivalry with Miami's All-Pro defensive end Bill Stanfill Saturday.

"He's smart and tough, just so damned cagey," said Mayes Wednesday as the Bengals geared for their second National Football League exhibition game.

"He kept catching our backs from behind just because he's so smart. I think he knew our calls, I think he knew what we were going to do," said Mayes, a 6-foot-5, 260-pounder who has been a starter for Cincinnati since his arrival in 1970.

"I think he knew it just from watching films," said Mayes. "And he's quick enough to recover if he makes a mistake."

Mayes met Stanfill during the 1969 All-Star game in Chicago. It was a case of first impressions being deceptive.

"Off the field he's real slow, an easy-going guy. He's slow moving," said Mayes.

But Stanfill doesn't lull anyone to sleep anymore.

"For 100 grand a year, I'll talk real slow too. But seriously, Stanfill moves real well...it's hard to find a weakness," said Mayes.

The others are Pittsburgh's Dwight White, Cedrick Hardman of San Francisco, and Elvin Bethea of Houston.

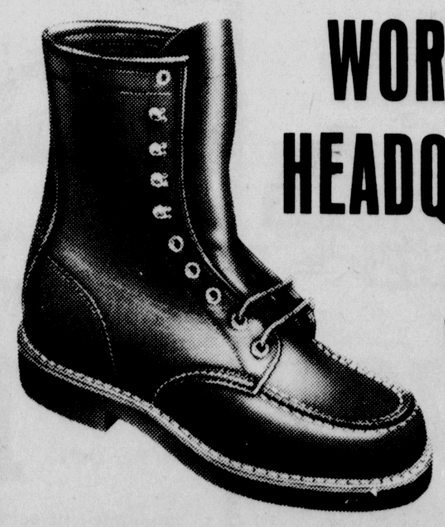

"Physically, I'm in the best shape I've ever been in," he said. "And mentally, it's really no problem. It's just a matter of getting my timing down and playing a few more games."

PARACHUTISTS ARE ALSO A RESPONSIBILITY

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — As a result of the drowning of 16 parachutists in Lake Erie in 1967, the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court in Cincinnati has ruled that the responsibility of air traffic controllers extends to parachutists as well as to airplanes and their passengers. So says the Research Group Inc. here, a legal research service for attorneys.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Shark reports continue to rise

By DUDLEY LEHEW
Associated Press Writer

Swimmers and surfers apparently have survived "Jaws" and again are looking for fun instead of fins, although a few are keeping their eyes open wider than usual.

"Shark business is now old hat," said George Whitehead of the Cabrillo Beach, Calif., lifeguard station. "We are being constantly asked about sharks, but it seems to be curiosity rather than fear."

Whitehead said that after the release of "Jaws," a film about a great white shark terrorizing — and eating — swimmers, the number of bathers dropped, but trips to the beach now appears average.

"When it gets hot, that's what people always do. Although this year maybe they are looking over their shoulders a little," said Dennis McCarbery, a spokesman for the Los Angeles County department of Parks and Recreation.

The result apparently has been an increase in shark reports, but not necessarily sharks.

Dr. David Baldridge, a researcher at Mote Marine Laboratory in Sarasota, Fla., says "there is absolutely no evidence to support any abnormal increase in Florida shark populations.

"Although a number of minor attacks and large-sized catches are being reported, that would have remained virtually unknown several years ago."

"Jaws" author Peter Benchley agrees. He said from his Stonington, Conn., cottage Tuesday, "Suddenly they're seeing things that have been there forever. They are very shark conscious. There's been no change in the shark population.

"I think it's unreasonable for people to react hysterically and say they are never going to go swimming again. The animals have always been there.

"The incidents, eating people, attacking boats, have all happened. The only thing that is fictional is that the animal would hang around a beach like that for a matter of weeks."

Ed Joyce, director of the division of marine resources for the Florida Department of Natural Resources, says a chance of shark attack is "considerably less than the chance of being struck by lightning."

Janice Ransom, a Miami Beach swimmer, said that after reading a lot about the mechanical shark used to film "Jaws," she is not scared.

"I still swim as far out as I used to," she said.

Not so for Jeffrey Hanrahan, 20, who gave up surfing at Daytona Beach, Fla., "after I was bumped by one shark." He claims officials have kept comments on sharks low-keyed so tourism won't be hurt.

A sighting of shark fins was enough to close Southampton, N.Y., beaches for the first time in 10 years.

Southampton authorities promptly closed several swimming areas for about 45 minutes and then declared the water safe again. Scores of swimmers, however, made an "orderly" rush to shore when the alarm was sounded, officials said.

Two persons injured in rural auto crash

Two persons were injured in an accident which severely damaged a Fayette County man's auto, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported today. Washington C.H. police officers are investigating a hit-skip mishap.

A car driven by Larry B. Ging, 21, Rowe-Ging Road, failed to negotiate a left curve while traveling east on U.S. 35-NW, eight-tenths of a mile west of the I-71 intersection at 2:30 a.m. Wednesday and traveled off the right side of the road 450 feet in the ditch, drove 90 feet diagonally back across the road and 90 feet in the opposite ditch where he struck a fence and fence post, traveled 30 feet into a field and overturned on its top. Ging claimed injury from the wreck and his passenger, Danny D. McDonald, 23, Jeffersonville, showed visible signs of injury at the accident scene. Neither driver was treated, according to officials at Fayette Memorial Hospital. Ging was cited by sheriff's deputies for traveling left of center.

A car driven by Robert A. Chaney, 17, Rt. 4, was moderately damaged when struck by a truck owned by W.C. Fogaly, Miami Town, on Court Street near the Main Street intersection at 10:07 a.m. Wednesday. Police reported the truck owned by Fogaly left the scene and they are continuing investigation.

Solon takes other jobs

WILLIAMSON, W.Va. (AP) — Rep. Ken Hechler plans to return to the Lock Stock and Barrel restaurant today, serving pinto beans and rhubarb pie to constituents in the southern West Virginia coalfields.

The 60-year-old Democrat was at the restaurant at 5:30 a.m. Wednesday, and served about 50 breakfasts to the miners, construction workers and storekeepers before the sun rose. Then he plunged into the lunch crush. The special — Ken's Choice — featured pinto beans, corn bread, buttermilk and rhubarb cobbler.

Hechler plans to work at various jobs in his district to meet his constituents on common ground.
